Ok, I am a traditionalist, sorry.

5wpm should not be an impediment to anyone with normal faculties and normal physical dexterity.
I could do 5 wpm at 7 or 8 and I did not know a ham operator...my dad taught me after he came home from Army as Radio op. Never used it for 15 or so years.

At 25 I took a novice class (finally) and was doing over 20wpm in 2-3 weeks.

For anything above the entry license, a code increase would be warranted to operate in the best cw bands, maybe.

When I took my General, Advanced, and Extra I had to do it at the FCC office and took and sent code from the Director, Detroit office. Talk about nervous!
I dont think you can compare the V.E.C. experience (as good a job as they do) with that for excitement and stress.
When you came out of the MCNamara Bldg in Detroit, you knew you had taken a test. You knew you had earned your ticket!

No, I would not stay on C.B.......as good a service as it is, it cannot compare with the people of Ham Radio.

Gay Bashing? Gay Bashing? I didn't see any gay bashing, Mark. I DID see a question mark behind "homobrew". How is that gay bashing? Are you overly sensitive about your admitted bisexual proclivities?
Please cease putting words in the mouths of others, Mark. I will not allow that to pass.
Oh, and does it irk you if I enjoy "topsotting"? Is that gay bashing, too? The British use the term sot to describe a drunkard. As an offensive term for one who drinks habitually, (drunkard).
If I "topsot", am I picking on Brits? Those who imbibe?

And just WHO is the controlling authority on whether I top post or not? YOU? <derisive laughter>

You don't count, Mark.

Now, tell us just what is "homobrew"?

As someone that entered the hobby as a no-code tech and upgraded to extra within a year, I feel I've earned the right to gripe. I did element 1C at 20WPM. This 5WPM thing irks me.

Of course I haven't used a radio in a few years now. Restrictions on antennas and the fact that 2m, 70cm and up are nothing but packet trackers these days.

Perhaps it would put a different perspective on things if you read up on the early history of ham radio. The earliest testing for CW was only 5wpm for any class (see "The Art & Skill of Radiotelegraphy" available as a free download from FISTS). While I also had to take and pass a 20wpm test for my Extra, the 5wpm does not irk me. I simply want people to have the basics so that they won't be afraid to pursue this at a later date as their interests change. I want people to know that they can learn it instead of believing the naysayers who try to convince them that it is "too hard".

I've made worldwide HF contacts from my car so there are alternatives. I know apartment dwellers who go down to the local park regularly and put up a temporary antenna on these base plates that campers sometimes use.

Packet is declining on VHF/UHF. We have some lively usage for other purposes in our area. Start a simplex net or a repeater net. Do some weak signal SSB or CW work. Interesting things crop up from time to time.

There are people who are pushing ahead on their code for that reason. I've seen several postings to that effect on various ham sites. Others are pushing ahead simply because they don't want to wait.

all perosn can learn code

but that is just a red herring

Code testing lacks any legal basis wisince WRC-2003

We have to remove unnecessary and superfluous licensing requirements.

Then the presentation of sound reasoning has been successful.

Who is "Jimmie"? There's a "Jimmie D" who has posted to rrap recently.
I'm not him

Who is this "Jimmie" person? Can't be me, because I've never claimed to be "serving...country in other ways". And I work some HF CW DX, but not as much as many other hams.

No protests from me. Just a statement of fact: I am not "Slow Code".

You mean like knowing the correct distance from the USSR to Tokyo? Or the actual length of a quarter-wave whip for 73 MHz?

No, that's your game, Len.

One can always tell when Len is losing the debate - he starts following his profile.

Really? Where's your proof?

Gee, Len, you've posted to rrap as lenanderson@mog-ur.com nocwtest@aol.com lenof21@aol.com lenover21@aol.com averyfine@aol.com averyfineman@aol.com

and the screen name you use now.

Those are just the ones we know of, too. There are probably more. Many of your posts are anonymous, too.

Maybe you were "Cutie Boy", Len, doing a bad imitation of "Scratchi".

For all we know, Len or Brian Burke, N0IMD could be "Slow Code". I don't mean to be insulting, but since "SC" insists on being anonymous, he could be anybody.

I just know he isn't me.

Do you still have trouble "integrating young people into...an adult

You mean like someone who calls himself "Avery Fine"? And then denies posting here?

Or "Leo"? Does "Leo" have "No guts. No courage. No brains."?

He's got plenty more, "SC".

It's really simple, "SC". Len has no tolerance for disagreement with his cherished views. All you have to do to get him going is to disagree with him. Or do something even worse: prove he is wrong (mistaken) about something.

No, there's me, too. Jim, N2EY. You can read my comments to FCC on ECFS.

I'm for both keeping the Morse Code test and improving the written tests.

Dee, place all presently licensed USA amateurs in front of stations equipped with a manual key AND CWGET. Have them operate operate any CW Only Contest with whichever is more comfortable for them to use. Total the scores...

I think you get the point.

The "dumbing down" argument is just an extension of the "keeping out the riff-raff" argument.

Dee, you have a Ham Husband to take care of the Ohm's Law and Theory end of your station, so it's no wonder you have no real use for it..

How do you get the subaudible tones to work on the Icom IC-2000? The procedure in my manual does not work. (Or, maybe I'm interpreting it wrong.)

There is NO separate pass-fail TEST for "image, SST [sic] or fax" nor for data or voice required by the FCC for an amateur license. ["SSTV"]

The ONLY separate pass-fail TEST is for manual telegraphy.

>> Because of the efforts made to dismiss countless Morse Myths over the >> years, you were just now able to state that not all CW signals are good

>You are exaggerating.

Hardly. ALL of the pro-code 1x2s in here, plus some 1x3s, have stated the hoary old Maxim "CW always gets through."

Except N2EY who never admits to doing anything wrong...:-)

>None have stated all CW signals are good. What they >have contended is that it is possible to copy a poor CW signal under >conditions where you could not copy other types of signals.

"CW always gets through..." :-)

If morse code radiotelegraphy were so "good," why hasn't NASA picked up on it for the Deep Space Net? For the quarter-million-mile 'DX' path to our moon? Why have the maritime folks GIVEN UP on morse code for Safety Of Life At Sea? [GMDSS uses a form of data, automated]

PSK will allow 100 WPM data to get through when all the morsepersons have to use their imaginations to fill in the garbled morse characters.

Still, the argument over the separate pass-fail "CW" TEST is there with all the morsepersons wanting it be kept forever and ever in FCC regulations...WHY?

Rhetorical question. The separate pass-fail "CW" TEST is there because: (1) The ARRL wants it (they "know what is best for ham radio"); (2) The already-licensed had to take a morse test and everyone else had better take one, too!

No, it isn't.

The requirements for US amateur radio license have been slowly but steadily reduced for more than 25 years now. Not just the code tests but also the writtens. That's not the fault of those taking the tests.

Brian, do you think that using a false sexist claim is somehow going to cause you to win the debate?

You lost.

Realy i honestly have no real dat on the subject NOT being catholic and being from a religious background that frowns on Rome we have tended to avoid thier school I do hope some schools are doing a better job

I mean de equates being able to do Morse Code (which she flasely claims based on the lies she was taught is somehow related to basis of Radio Maxwells equations to data that wtries to keep someone from hurting themselves, shows poor thinking process

Isn't that kind of cheating? W0EX would inject some non-standard

Dee, you know that's not true. There are countless present hams, former hams, and people who were denied amateur licenses based upon the Morse Code exam who actually studied Morse Code and who never got to the point where they could use morse code on a practical level.

Didn't say you did. I'm saying that if you had said something as atrocious as that 10 years ago, W0EX and K3LT would have kicked you over to the NCI Camp.

EXpecially if W0EX suspected that you were using a machine.

So you're willing to concede that sometimes ham radio won't get

And sometimes CW doesn't get through even with skilled operators. And sometimes you use CWGet to help you along when you find that your skills are lacking.

Larry Roll had one scenarion, and in that scenario, CW was the only mode that would get through, and it would always get through.

I used to hand plot RADAR image reports that I received over TTY, but those were the olden days. We've moved far beyond that now.

Satellite remote sensing is digital. A seven layer image could be sent by CW, but it would take a long time.

Glad to hear you say that. Why were you so silent on that subject when K3LT and W0EX were saying otherwise?

What they wouldn't claim is possible is that there are conditions where even CW wouldn't get through.

Just 25 years? I guess you forgot about the "Conditional" license where hams get an upgrade from their buddy.

No, of course not. It's not anyones fault except the FCC that they put offices so far away from ham's residences.

No most of them have left due to the spam created by Mark Morgan, the interminable pontification of Len Anderson, the compulsive responses that some seem to feel that they must post to the spam, the vulgarity of people like Opus, the slamming that people like Slow Code do to those who licensed or will license under the current system and so on.

i.e. They left because it was impossible to have a good, spirited debate without things getting out of hand.

I only drop in occasionally to see what's happening. Mostly I don't bother to respond as it has proven to be pointless with all the bad eggs on line.

no ignorant wshe claims flasely that Morse code is a radio related subject and equates in importantance to safety related issues

"CW always gets through" in only one scenario, and that is a fictitious Can't tell what your point is. Those experienced with code and using only their ears and brain will beat CWGet in any contest you care to name. It doesn't do the job when there are a multitude of operators calling at the same time. Also CWGet cannot copy the average manually keyed Morse code.

So whatever your point is, you didn't prove anything.

I've never mentioned the "dumbing down" argument. My point is that there is a body of basic knowledge that all should know. The difficulty arises in determining what that basic knowledge should be. Generally, the experienced people should be the ones to define what constitutes basic knowledge. The beginners are too inexperienced to do so.

Please do not insult me by stereotyping like that. I happen to be a degreed engineer (B.S. in Aerospace Engineering) with 20 years of applied experience in engineering (aerospace, nuclear, mechanical and automotive fields). Should I happen to run into a need to use Ohms law and so on, I am perfectly capable of doing so. In addition, I was the one who taught the class for our club members who wished to upgrade to Extra, a class which my husband attended so that he could upgrade from General to Extra.

You have ASSumed and made a donkey of yourself.

Actually, Mark Morgan is merely the necessary balance to Robesin's postings. I read Marks posting that are responding to what I've posted and very little else that he posts.

I do smaple some of Lens posting because they sometimes carry a lot of satire. What do you thik of Len characterizing you as "Miss Manners?"

Opus? He/She must be posting under another name these days. Ditto K3LT, K4YZ, and N2EY.

OUT OF HAND???

Robesin is OUT OF MIND! Good thing you don't shoot your mouth off or you might find bricks through windows, slashed tires, or terrorized ham

I like you're "steady as she goes" format even when I disagree with you, which I do.

So who do you think "Slow Code" is? Coslo? Miccolis? Roll? Deignan?

So what? I'd simply ask him to QRS 13 so I could copy his deliberately badly sent code. I'd also chew him out for being a lid.

You know I've queried people here who said they had problems and "couldn't" learn code. In every case the problem came down to bad training methods or bad study habits or insufficient study time or unrealistic expectations (i.e. in the time or effort required) or a combination of any or all of them.

Any ham who has sufficient operating experience on HF has experienced total radio blackouts due to solar storms. HF gets wiped out except for very local communications due to ground wave or line of sight. Any ham that denies that is a fool, inexperienced, or a liar.

So what? I've never claimed to be highly skilled. I've always said that my skills are quite modest. However, when conditions are poor, even I can beat CWGet. I'll sometimes use it when I'm too tired to focus and the signal is fast and strong. Otherwise it just doesn't do it. The rest of the time, I depend on my own skills.

If CW doesn't get through with skilled operators, then it's due to bad conditions. In general, CW is a robust mode that will typically be the last mode to fail as conditions worsen.

Mostly I don't bother with people making outrageous statements. In addition, if I remember correctly, they were either no longer posting or dropping off in their posting when I started reading the newsgroups. Basically I've only heard about what they posted rather than reading the posts myself.

Defensive knee-jerk reaction and exaggeration in response to the equally idiotic posters who claim that there is no need or use for CW in modern radio.

I see Mark Morgan as the necessary balance in the vicious postings by Robesin. We actually have very little in common. We both claim to be amateur radio operator and military veterans. I got chopped to the US Army twice, so I know a little bit about the Army. I also got chopped to the US Navy once, and there and at service schools, and in Somalia, was fairly close to the USMC.

As far as amateur radio goes, the only one of these bozos I've ever QSO'd was Heil when I was DX on Guam.

Talk about not just sexist, but bonifide sexual harassment (and Jim never once chimed in to say boo)....

Not so. However, all the digital and image modes are merely a matter of connecting the radio to the computer and running the appropriate software. Once I decided to try the digital thing, I made the interface and was up and running in an hour. After a couple of months, it became rather boring. On the other hand, code needs to be learned before it can be tried. Many people will give up learning before they've had a chance to try it if there is not a test for it.

>> the garbled morse characters.

Yet PSK fails utterly and completely when there is an aurora. And the ionospheric problems associated with an aurora cause problems far south of the actual aurora zone so it is not just a northern issue. The computer may be sending PSK at 100wpm per minute but the data won't be copyable on the other end. Even a beginner sending and receiving at 5wpm will have better throughput. When the aurora is relatively mild, even voice will be more successful than PSK.

I think they're both a little off plumb but Morgan is the worst. He's been known to post hundreds of messages in a day. Robeson can't seem to resist jabbing him.

Doesn't bother me in the least. I hold myself to a high standard and believe that the world would be more pleasant if others did the same.
However it's their problem if they don't. Occasionally I get a little annoyed and so get a little sharp but I work hard at not doing so. You get a lot better response from people (in general) if you treat them right.

Perhaps but that and worse has been said to him. He seems to have a compulstion to attempt to refute every comment directed at him. I've posted in here suggesting "shunning" those who slam him but he doesn't seem to want to. He'd rather perpetuate the threads.

Thank you, I appreciate that. I enjoy good debates but find that a debate that has deteriorated to personal insults is boring. It's unfortunate that happens so much in here.

Haven't a clue on Slow Code. The style doesn't sound like Coslo or Miccolis. Don't really know the style of the other fellows writing.

He doesn't need to create dozens of posts to refute each one. Many of Mark's posts are and were quite vicious. I killfiled Morgan the day he made unacceptable comments about Steve's deceased daughter.

I happen to remember the post. He said that one can serve in other ways.
He did not say whether he himself served in the military or in other ways.

Yet based on that comment, Len Anderson and others have made ASSumptions.

I'm a pro code test advocate and an Extra. I would never hide behind anonymity. And I do not hold the candidates responsible for the quality or extent of the tests. They have no choice in the matter. What the new ham does have a choice in is to either stagnate or progress. He can gain the experience to then join in discussions and contribute or he can put his foot in his mouth with such inexperienced statements as "you need an amplifier to work DX" or "you can't work Texas from Michigan on VHF". However even then, I try to avoid anything that could be taken as a put down because I want them to stay in ham radio and grow and develop. I'll invite them over to work a contest with my measly 100 watts or I'll introduce them to one of the QRP enthusiasts. I'll invite them to work the VHF station at Field Day and pair them up with one of our VHF experts. It's called being a good ham and an Elmer.

And there are also a lot of them drooling like Pavlovs dog waiting for it to disappear.

CW is alway the focal point.

I've never heard: "get a license, there are fewer questions. I have heard
"Get a license, no CW required, or code speed is reduced, upgrade.

If the CW requirement were raised to 13, I doubt we'd hear: "Get a license, code speed requirement has been increased.

Oh well.

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

You couldn't be more wrong. The FCC should get to define what "basic knowledge" is, and those that do the defining don't have a clue what Morse Code is. But they've been buffaloed into believing that it tis something magical.

I can't help but think that all engineers, aerospace or civil or otherwise, had to learn Ohm's Law as part of "thier" professional certification. If I am wrong, then shame on the state of American Engineerism, and shame on America. No wonder we're overrun with engineers from India, Pakistan, China and Russia.

Learning Oh,'s Law for a hobby is one thing, but a professional engineer........

Be kind enough to show where. Merely claiming to be an engineer without a use for Ohm's Law or Radio Theory is not enough.

You don't get to decide that. Has Robesin accused you of lesbian encounters or pedophilia?

When he does, I'll be sure to keep track of the ratio of Robesin postings to Dee postings.

Um, yeh. It's really awful, isn't it? Almost as bad as accusing people of rape.

Did you know that his daughter was severly retarded, and he makes jokes about "the short bus" on RRAP? I doubt that his daughter was well off

So what? When I'm in a contest, I use the best computer ever developed (the human brain). When the person on the other end is sending manually keyed code, again I use the good old brain. That I sometimes use CWGet is no particular endorsement of it. It's a tool that I use when I'm tired and still want to operate code. However unless the signal is of good quality and volume, it ends up being necessary to go back to the good old human brain. My decision then is to either put in the extra effort to focus or just call it a night and go to bed.

Yes the FCC has the task of defining what that should be. However there is Mechanical engineers don't have a need for Ohm's law. They go hire the electrical engineers. Aerospace engineering is a branch of mechanical engineering (we don't get to drop the lesser terms in the equations since they have a significant impact for our field). Again we go hire the electrical engineers. Same with civil and structural engineers. On the other hand electrical engineers generally do not study basic pressure vessal theory but go hire the mechanical engineers for that.

> Learning Oh,'s Law for a hobby is one thing, but a professional

Again it depends on the field. We all studied common areas such as calculus and fast fourier transforms but items unique to a field generally were not taught across the board. We didn't study Ohms law and the electrical engineers didn't study cantilever beam theory.

You assumed that I needed help from my OM on theory, etc. That is the area to which I referred.

Obviously it's someone who's been here awhile.

Troll was the racist poster ("My favorite black on the bus...," and "Welfare mothers of Color with their hands out...").

Deignan was the vanity callsign collector and the original "RF Commando." He called me a liar when I said he had collected 12
callsigns, but I was wrong - one of the callsigns actually belonged to his wife at the same address. So I guess I was a liar after all. I should have known that he had a Ham Wife that collected vanity callsigns, too.

Deignan's buddy in Hawaii loaned him his PO Box number so he could scam
some Hawaiin calls, meanwhile, the Hawaiin PO Box owner was scamming a Guam callsign. Never been to Guam and could have operated /KH2 like I did for two years. I guess a Hawaiin Call Stroke Guam Call is a pretty cool thing...

Anyway, these are the guys who pass judgement on me because I am too fat, lazy, and stupid to buy into the whole Morse Exam stuff at 5, and then 13, and then 20 WPM.

> Dee D. Flint, N8UZE

That's the beauty of anon postings, they don't have to follow their own
"style."

I began posting as hot-ham when I gave up Billy Beeper at Hans request.
I'd prefer to not post with my name and/or call as I used to, as I seem to get lots and lots of spam when I do.

Meanwhile, Robesin has posted my name, call and address much more than I have.

That's so swell of him.

I guess when Mark posts Robesin's address and phone number, it's just tit for tat. No?

Nope. The Catholic School can only accept students that apply. No one is forced to apply or attend. And there are no geographical restrictions to the area that a Catholic School services, only the ability of a parent to get their child to school on time.

How do you come to that conclusion? I know very little about her politics and it wouldn't matter if I did. As I recall, she defended her choice far better than I or anyone else could have done it for her. I supported her right to choose a legally available call sign even though I thought her choice a little strange. It's not within my power to make others accept it.

As tasteless and tacky as it was, it may not have actually meet the legal definition of sexual harassment. She was not threatened with a job loss or with an overall loss in her quality of life. Discussion groups are not for the faint of heart, especially ones like these newsgroups. Participation in these news groups does not contribute to quality of life in any significant way. It is an idle and insignificant form of recreation.

Yup. A simple check of the call sign database shows that it is a vanity call. So it was hers by choice. I don't recall for sure but didn't she say she did it on a dare?

Not the same thing at all and you very well know it. Her overall quality of life is seriously affected and her life could even be in danger. Besides rapists don't care what the victim is wearing. They are looking for some one they can successfully dominate and terrorize. The shy school girl in the dowdy clothes hurrying home with her books clutched to her chest is just as likely or even more likely to be raped than the brazen hookers down on Eight Mile (that's a Detroit reference).

> Was she asking for it and is she on her own?

See my comment above. If I saw some one being threatened with violence and it were within my power to do something about it, I would. It wouldn't matter if it were that shy school girl or that brazen hooker. Today, I'd have to limit myself to calling for help but in my younger, more fit days, I'd also have taken an active (i.e. physical) part in her defense.

Nope. Why should I? It accomplishes nothing. I want people to enjoy ham radio. I want their motivation to develop to be based on the joy they get out of it and the joy they see others get out of it. Sarcasm does not serve that objective.

There are way too many people that confuse honest mistakes with lying.
Don't be one of them. The FCC has been getting on people for doing that and making them justify the calls or give them up.

Don't see why. But again the FCC is getting wise to such antics.

Depends on how bad you want the privileges. Just don't ask for something for nothing. Originally I had no interest in ham radio but my husband at the time dragged me to a class as something we could do together. As I got involved, I found it interesting. I deduced very early on that what I wanted to get out of ham radio would best be served by going all the way to Extra. Since I wanted the privileges, I met the requirements including the 20 wpm.

Not everyone wants those privileges. Kim is a case in point. She is a Tech Plus and could have gotten her General with just a written test and no further code testing as of April 2000. She chose not to because she did not really like HF operations. The typical background static of HF bothers her. Her interests lie in VHF and up. Since she has full privileges there, the General does not serve her goals.

Very true. But it takes a lot of discipline to consistently write in a different style and not make tell tale slips. When Len Anderson was posting as Avery Fineman, it was quite obvious they were the same person.

Doesn't really matter as with the internet this information is findable one way or another if one cares to go after it. Posting it here only shows that you have the internet search skills of any average user and get some kind of juvenile thrill out of posting it.

Mark has decided to be the new de-facto group moderator. He thinks that he deserves this position due to the sheer volume of his posts alone. According to Mark we are all guilty of identity theft, others of us are guilty of yet to be named "crimes" and those of us who disagree with him are "liers".

Mark will now accuse me of being Steve, or Dave, or Roger, or whoever is his accusee du jour, and you may rest assured he will post in bulk.

Go for it, Mark! Speak, Boy, speak!

What is your point.?

I amswered his query in a positive way.

You obviously know there ARE cw portions of bands PLUS a cw only band which is OBVIOUSLY what was referred to.

If you could not manage 5wpm in 5 years then you have an unusual difficulty, or you were not taking the time to do it and stay with it.
Remember I said "normal faculties and normal physical dexterity". A person with ADD or Dyslexia may not be able to , and others with other issues may not. (I know lots of blind guys who are hams, they dont think blindness is an impediment to ham radio or the code)

He asked if cw would keep us from Amateur radio. I amswered the question indicating I did not think cw was a difficult impediment and used examples why from my own experience.

If you have dyslexia then youdo not have normal faculties and dexterity and the post did not refer to you,. Why bother responding?

I SPECIFICALLY EXCLUDED you in my original post.

Obviously it's someone who's been here awhile.

"Welfare mothers of Color with their hands out...").

Deignan was the vanity callsign collector and the original "RF Commando." He called me a liar when I said he had collected 12
callsigns, but I was wrong - one of the callsigns actually belonged to his wife at the same address. So I guess I was a liar after all. I should have known that he had a Ham Wife that collected vanity callsigns, too.

Deignan's buddy in Hawaii loaned him his PO Box number so he could scam
some Hawaiin calls, meanwhile, the Hawaiin PO Box owner was scamming a Guam callsign. Never been to Guam and could have operated /KH2 like I did for two years. I guess a Hawaiin Call Stroke Guam Call is a pretty cool thing...

Anyway, these are the guys who pass judgement on me because I am too fat, lazy, and stupid to buy into the whole Morse Exam stuff at 5, and then 13, and then 20 WPM.

> Dee D. Flint, N8UZE

That's the beauty of anon postings, they don't have to follow their own
"style."

I began posting as hot-ham when I gave up Billy Beeper at Hans request.
I'd prefer to not post with my name and/or call as I used to, as I seem to get lots and lots of spam when I do.

Meanwhile, Robesin has posted my name, call and address much more than
I have.

That's so swell of him.

I guess when Mark posts Robesin's address and phone number, it's just tit for tat. No?

>And when Roger Wiseman posts Mark's home address, phone number, etc., is that just more "tit for tat"? Sorry, Billy, but I prefer to think of that as maliciousness.

I have no other life but online? Aren't you being a bit guilty of calling the kettle black? That is an odd comment coming from one who often posts a your endearing qualities, Mark.

And so far as sock "puupet"s are concerned, what gives you, the goon with Here again your convoluted thought processes come to the front.

Thanks for the entertainment.

And you keep changing the parameters of the challenge.

Are you saying that of those amateurs that learned the code, that they are all still highly proficient in it? I think most learned the code as a licensing hurdle, and never looked back.

Then there are the majority of hams who have no-code licenses...

They don't even have a definition of what Morse Code is within the

Why aren't the communications billets merely a direct duty assignment

Whole government agencies gave up on code. Commercial businesses gave up on code.

Incorrect. Catholic schools do not have to serve every area, nor accept every student.

> The Catholic School can only accept students that apply. No one > is forced to apply or attend.

That's true. But it's not the point.

> And there are no geographical > restrictions to the area that a Catholic School services, only the > ability of a parent to get their child to school on time.

Which is the exact opposite of what public schools must do.

Public schools must provide an education for all students in all districts. They must provide transportation to and from school if the student lives beyond a specified distance.

And they cannot charge the studen't family for any of those services.

> > Public schools cannot.

> They can as much as any school can.

No, they cannot.

A Catholic school can refuse to admit any student who applies, for a wide variety of reasons. They can expel any student for similar reasons.

The reason can be as simple as "we're full" or as complicated as "we can't deal with your child's special problems".

Public schools must accept every student in the district. If the student has special needs, the district must deal with them appropriately, even if it means sending the student to a special school at the school district's expense, providing aides and special transportation, etc. And the public school system has to pay for all of it.

Catholic schools can simply say "it's not our problem" and not admit the student.

It often seems that way.

Yep. That's a helluva thing for a 20 year veteran to be saying. I'm sure he had to spend a fair amount of time in the "Social Actions" office with them trying to reeducate him. And the totally laughable part of all that was that he said he had a degree in human resources and was trying to land a position in that field.

With some of these guys they think it adds to their credential. It's like the JA's using a JA owned hotel address on Guam to get the Guam 1x2 calls.

But collecting 11 different call and then turning some of them into Hawaiin calls is just another form of megalomania that we see on RRAP.

In QRZ.com, in the name search, type in "RF Commando" or something like that. Nevermind, I'll do it...

There are 1 records matching +rf* +commando*

KB1CCE RF COMMANDOS RHODE ISLAND CHAPTER

There are 3 records matching +Deignan*

KH6HZ DEIGNAN MICHAEL P (This one is a Hawaiin call with a MA addy) WE1RD MICHAEL P DEIGNAN REPEATER ASSOCIATION (This one in Rhode Island, weird)

The 3rd is a yl in Canada, so I'm not posting that.

Anyway, all three of the above calls are at different addresses.

When I post as Hot-Ham, there's no intent to deceive. There is an intent to have a throw-away email address that I've checked the mailbox

Good side-step.

Are Bruce and Dan in your killfile? Are "thier" anonymous characters in your killfile?

I think amateur radio is one of the best hobbies ever, and it can also serve in an emergency communications roll.

What does that mean?

Besides, the Conditional stopped being issued about 30 years ago.

The reason FCC stopped doing testing was to save money. They replaced their paid examiners with unpaid volunteers.

It's a sexist claim to assume that Dee's husband takes care of the Ohm's Law and Theory

That's because CWGet fails in almost all contest situations. It cannot handle the QRM caused by all the stations calling at once.

No I do not say that all those who learned the code are highly proficient. I am saying that setting someone up with CWGet for a contest is a recipe for failure and a very unenjoyable contest experience. When I first started cw contesting, I had to listen to the station many times through picking out their call letter by letter over a dozen exchanges before throwing in my call. I also sent PSE QRS 5 on many occasions to get the balance of the exchange. But it worked.

If they choose to view as merely a hurdle to pass and never try it, that's sad but that's their problem.

> Then there are the majority of hams who have no-code licenses...

While they have numbers, way too many of them are inactive or have low activity levels. When I work VHF/UHF contests, I sometimes check the call signs of the people worked. Most are Extras, some are Generals, and I've only worked ONE Technician. And that's in a voice contest. Why is that? They have full band privileges and full power privileges yet they don't use them. Why? Same deal with the grid square hunters. And so on.

The ITU has a standard definition of what constitutes International Morse Code that is sufficient for the purpose. The FCC doesn't need to define it. They say we must pass the International Morse Code. It is sufficient that the dot/dash sequence is defined for the characters. The weighting, spacing, and speed can be varied to suit the conditions. For test purposes, the Council of VECs establishes the test standard and that is sufficient since all who go test have the opportunity to train using the exact parameters (tone, weighting, spacing, speed, etc) that will be used on the test. The variations that occur in the real world can be learned on the air.

Since we weren't required to take electrical engineering courses, it is not relevant. Would you require EEs to take basic mechanical engineering courses? That would chew up a couple of years.

> Were you able to hire out your PE exams?

Most engineering jobs do not require that one even have a PE license or registration or whatever they call it these days. Plus there are study guides specifically aimed at the content of the PE exam. Plus the exam for a structural engineer is different from the one for a mechanical engineer is different from the one for an electrical engineer, etc.

No I did not say that. I believe that they do belong in the licensing setup as again for amateur radio, they are basics of the field. Just because my usage of them is low doesn't mean they don't belong there. One needs to learn the basics as they don't yet know what direction their hobby will take them. Learning the basics helps them decide which and when or if they want to further explore various branches of amateur radio.

Similarly, there were several courses I took as part of the basics of engineering but seldom used. I've never done fast fourier transforms in my work as my career did not go that direction. I've rarely used calculus. On the other hand, I spent a significant chunk of my career (12 years out of 33 years) writing engineering software using Fortran and later Visual Basic. The ironic part is that Fortran was a class I hated in college and struggled to get through (Basic was not in use at the time). Once I was out in the real world working on software to use in real situations, I found it to be quite easy and fun.

I'll spell it out for you, Jim.

Half of all USA licensed amateurs are licensed under a Code-Free license. Probably most of the coded licensees never looked back when they learned the code to get past a licensing hurdle, don't use code, and couldn't if their lives depended on it.

So put all USA licensed amateurs in fron of a station equipped with a morse code key and with CWGet and total their scores.

Yep, but nobody ever claimed that amateur radio was being dumbed down.
The USA amateur service has a proud history of it.

It doesn't cost the FCC anything for an amateur to show up for testing, unless you want to claim that the examinees got to file a voucher for their travel.

Good thing there wasn't a union.

Beats me. But you know what they say. There's the right way, the wrong way and the Army way. I would not presume to pass judgement on their training.
However it may be that some of the recruits have not yet learned to read a schematic and have never operated a soldering iron. I'm quite sure that is not part of basic training.

So what if it is boring. That is no reason not to learn it. I suspected that digital would end up being boring but since I believe that a person should be striving to increase their knowledge and skills, I decided it was time to become familiar with this area. Afterall, I might find myself in the position of being asked to Elmer someone in this area.

They have different goals and objectives than amateur radio. Government agencies and commercial business do not have the goal of individual self training and experimentation. Comparing amateur radio to government/commercial applications is like comparing apples to pomegranates. They're both red fruits but there the similarity ends.

Different husband. My previous husband dragged me to the Tech class. We split up a few years later. Then after that I met the man who was to become my current husband. It is my current husband who took the Extra class that I was teaching. Sorry for the confusion there.

Although it would have been possible for me to have taught my previous husband since I reached Extra a couple of months before he did.

And I don't criticize some one who does that. It is only when there is the

Whether or not I were to respond to such accusations would make no difference as the postings would still be in the archive. If it did cause a problem in that area, I'd certainly take legal action against the poster and the company who accepted such unfounded accusations.

No not a side step. I'm not a lawyer, judge, legal expert, or a juror weighing evidence in such a case. So I don't have sufficient data to make such a judgement.

On that we agree. So on that upbeat note, let's conclude this extensive discussion (it was fun but we've kind of beaten it to death) and go work some radio.

I am looking to hire someone for a few hours to give me advice on a design for VHF ASK radio transmitter and receiver that I have designed.

The design is running but I need to improve sensitivity a bit and TX output power.

If you are interested please contact me by email.

You mean the Technician? If so, they are a considerable amount less than half.

40% is more like it.

That's not a given at all.

Remember the ARRL survey that was debated so much here? It showed that less than 40% of those hams who were asked never used Morse Code. And it included licensees from all license classes, not just those who had passed code tests.

Sure there are those who learned just enough to pass the Morse Code test and then never used it - just as there are those who just enough to pass the written tests and then never used it

Heck, your buddy Len couldn't even get the length of a 73 MHz quarter-wave whip antenna right, and he's a "PROFESSIONAL"!
> So put all USA licensed amateurs in fron of a station equipped with a

I presume you mean "contest scores"

Why?

Who is going to set up and pay for all those stations? What sort of stations would they be - HF, VHF, UHF? What sort of antennas, rigs, computers?

Any ham who wants to operate Morse Code using CWGet or some other software can do so right now - if they have a station that includes rig, antenna, and computer.

Yet I don't know of any amateur radio contesters who operate that way. Do you?

Your "thought experiment" doesn't seem to be thought out very well.

Now here's a real challenge:

The ARRL November CW Sweepstakes is this coming weekend. I'm going to operate in it, using my homebrew 100 watt station and antenna. No CWGet here.

How about we compare your score with mine a week from now?

Field Day 2007
Entry class 1B-1 (one transmitter, one operator).

The challenge is to assemble, transport, set up, operate, and take down a complete FD station - singlehanded, no outside help - and make the highest score.

Field Day location must not be owned by the participant and must not be a licensed amateur station location. Field Day location must be located in a place under FCC jurisdiction.

All equipment used must be legitimately owned by the operator.

All FCC regulations and ARRL rules that apply to Field Day must be complied with by all involved. Results report must be submitted to ARRL before the deadline.

Highest official score wins.

I've done better than 3000 points under such conditions. Can you?

How was it "dumbing down" to eliminate the Conditional?

Actually it cost FCC a lot of money to do testing.

First off, they had to have offices with test facilities. The office they had in Philadelphia back when I took my exams was on the 10th floor of the Custom House at 2nd and Chestnut. Lots of square feet of prime real estate just for the exam room.

Then there was the time of the examiners, all of whom worked for FCC.
Pay and benefits. At least two people per office, three days a week.
Times the number of offices all over the country.

Then add the FCC folks who revised the exams, duplicated them, and distributed them to the various offices all over the country. And the cost of doing all that.

The VE system eliminated all that expense. All FCC has to do now wrt amateur license testing is to look over the QPC submissions and approve them. And occasionally retest somebody.

Eliminating Element 1 will not save the FCC any expense. Keeping it will not cost them anything, either. Maybe that's why it's taking them so long.

You're presuming she's not doing what needs to be done, and is dependent on someone else to deal with the theory. I don't think that's the case at all.

Hmmm?

I've put up antennas with W3RV. Or rather, I helped out a little, since he had it all worked out on his own. No sisters involved.

He does know quite a lot about antennas, particularly the practical side. He even knows that a quarter wave at 73 MHz is a lot longer than three and one quarter inches....

Wait and see.

49.5% according to your very own postings.

I would expect you to say something like that.

The one where as a member, I did not receive a ballot?

The one that Mike Deignan characterized as "substantive?"

Yes, I recall the survey. Looked as if it had been developed by a bunch of dems hoping to influence the outcome of an election.

Why not? They're operating in a CW Contest. Why wouldn't you total their scores?

Think about it.

The Morsemen can bandy about the CQ WW and Field Day CW vs SSB contest scores all they want without having to standardize station equipment.
I bring up a scenario and NOW station equipment must be standardized.

There's some bias in your approach.

> Any ham who wants to operate Morse Code using CWGet or some other

Yep. I can finally agree with something you said.

> Yet I don't know of any amateur radio contesters who operate that way.
> Do you?

Nobody knew of anyone who operated amateur radio as in Larry Rolls
"Only CW can save the situation" but I NEVER ONCE saw your objection to it.

I bring up a scenario and NOW you have a problems with how contestors operate.

There's some bias in your approach.

> Your "thought experiment" doesn't seem to be thought out very well.

Sure it was.

Alternative scenario snipped.

Jeez you're thick. It was dumbing down to create such a license class.

It was the travel distance that was key in the creation of the Conditional license, not the desire for the FCC to save money. Try to stay on the subject.

That's all wunnerful, but you vectored off of the subject. Maybe next time you'll be able to cut and paste something germane to the subject.

Maybe. But they didn't even make the effort to define Morse Code in the rules for the last 3 R&Os. Yet they tell you that the exam myst be 5WPM, and you've got all these VEs getting to define what that means.

Explosion Blows Out Back of Marshall Co. House
Posted Friday, October 13, 2006 ; 10:19 PM

Glen Dale man homeless, Friday, after explosion.

Story by Pam Hoffer

A Glen Dale man is homeless, tonight, after the back of his home exploded just before five o'clock. It happened at 610 Glenhaven Avenue. Glendale Police say the back of a home blew off after there was a gas accumulation inside the bathroom. Firefighters say a fan burned up and overheated, sparking the fire and blowing out the back side of the house. The owner was found wandering around his back yard, covered in toilet paper, pantless, and in a daze. The owner of the home, R.L. Wiseman, said that his toilet had been stopped up for a couple of days and that he was unable to get any plumbers to fix the problem. Wiseman said he'd had gas accumulations in the past, but not quite to this extent. To make matters worse, Wiseman said he did not have homeowners insurance so everything is a total loss. Now the home is not stable and authorities have to determine what they're going to do next. In the meantime, Wiseman is sleeping in his car.

Anyone can teach a class licensed or not, but an Extra (actually 3 Extras) must proctor the Extra exam.

Welp, good breeding keeps me from doing what Robesin does. And Robesin wasn't stopped until someone out-assholed him. All Mark asked for was an apology for being called a rapist. Robesin couldn't do that.

You are mistaken, Brian.

The Technician license does not make up 49.5% of US hams. The total of Technicians and Technician Pluses reaches about that level. (All Technician Pluses are Morse Code tested).

In addition, many hams whose licenses say "Technician" are code tested and have some HF privileges. These include:

- all Tech Pluses who have renewed since April 15, 2000
- all Novices who have upgraded to Technician

- all Technicians who have passed Element 1, but not the written exam for General

btw, no US amateur radio license is "code-free". All of them can use Morse Code.

You mean like this:

reaking_news/15869924.htm

btw, next Tuesday I get to choose between Curt Weldon and Joe Sestak.
Which do you think I should vote for?

Why?

Even if someone rarely uses it, that means they still remember it and can use it at some level.

You are mistaken.

You've repeatedly claimed that I mis-stated the distance from Earth to the moon on rrap.
Show us where I did that - if you can.

I don't think you can, because it did not happen. If I did it, show us.

Otherwise you're just making things up.

> and you're a "professional."

I've never claimed to be a professional astronomer.

Len claims to be a "PROFESSIONAL in radio-electronics" (whatever that is) but he messes up on the length of an antenna for a radio service he has claimed to use.

I did. That's why I'm asking the question.

Do you think the taxpayers should subsidize amateur radio stations?

Who said anything about standardizing station equipment? Not me.

I simply want to know where all those stations are supposed to come from.

So a version of the experiment you describe can happen in every contest. But it doesn't.

So what? I don't read everything written to rrap. Larry hasn't posted here in years.

Not at all.

I just don't see anyone using CWGet to operate a contest - even though they could. Heck you could. Why don't you?

Why? Aren't you up to such a simple challenge? Here it is again:

Field Day 2007.

Entry class 1B-1 (one transmitter, one operator).

The challenge is to assemble, transport, set up, operate, and take down a complete FD station - singlehanded, no outside help - and make the highest score.

Field Day location must not be owned by the participant and must not be a licensed amateur station location. Station location must be under FCC jurisdiction.

All equipment used must be legitimately owned by the operator.

All FCC regulations and ARRL rules that apply to Field Day must be complied with by all involved.

Results report must be submitted to ARRL before the deadline. Highest official score wins.

A simple, real-world challenge. What's the problem?

No, Brian, I'm not "thick". You just did a poor job of explaining.

Why? The Conditional and its predecessor Class C go back to before the FCC.

I was writing about the reason the FCC stopped doing license testing for all license classes. That's part of the reduction in requirements.

Nope.

The subject was the reduction in license requirements by FCC giving over the testing to VEs.

We were different because we could communicate with each other in morse.
If code is eliminated there won't be anything unique anymore. Someone making an effort to learn code was also viewed has someone who most likely went out of their way to learn other things too, but now people look at the no codes and they don't see anything special there.

what delusions If the post is of a real newsstory then the reposter has comitted a crime in reposting it.

If as is more likely it is fraud then the crime of fraud has been comitted

either way the original poster is a criminal and motivated most likely by a desire to cause Wismen to return and cause more trouble, IOW the crime of maclious mischeive and as Wismen has made deaths as

No he's simply presuming that every aspect of amateur radio needs to deal with every aspect of theory. That is a fundamental fallacy that too often is used in an attempt to sidetrack a debate.

no it is the fallacy you just exposed a bit further assuming correctly that not every ham realy needs to know ohm's law (a statement I happen to agree with and anybody can achieve a license lacking solely a knowledge of OHM law) why does EVERY ham have to able to use ONE mode indeed the question become quite plainly why is Morsecode MORE important than Ohm's law? it certainly is under AARS testing today

Tsk, everyone not in-line with your prissy pedantry of "exact word definition" is "mistaken." :-)

Or "in error." Or just about any other adjective set stopping short of actually USING the word "LIAR." :-)

>The Technician license does not make up 49.5% of US hams. The total of

Do all those Plusses love, honor, and obey morsemanship?

Do you have 'accurate' statistics on that? Or just the PCTA-biased 'stats' from Joe Speroni?

>In addition, many hams whose licenses say "Technician" are code tested >and have some HF privileges.

Yes, in YOUR mind they DO love, honor, and obey morse...

So, if one strips away the Micollis massaging of morse, the NO-CODE-TEST Technician class is STILL the LARGEST US amateur radio class. Overwhelmingly.

The MAJORITY (no shaving of fractions there) of newcomers are getting INTO US amateur radio via the NO-CODE-TEST Tech class. Just enough to barely keep the total of all licensees at the same level they were three years ago.

Attrition is keeping the EXPIRED numbers so large. Some must be quitting the ARS before their lives are over...

>btw, no US amateur radio license is "code-free". All of them can use

BY THE WAY, prissy pedant, the phrase "code-free" refers to the LICENSE TEST. TEST, Mother Superior. TEST.

I was wrong to write only two adjectives. It should be three: Prissy, PISSY pedant. You have morse code on the brain. [there might be a medical cure for that...]

>Len claims to be a "PROFESSIONAL in radio-electronics" (whatever that >is) but he messes up on the length of an antenna for a radio service he

So, you did NOT see my own acknowledgement of my typo?

Of course not. You are operating in character-assassin mode and SELECTIVELY highlight 'errors.' :-)

I've gotten money in return for services rendered. In the legal sense that means I have done "professional work." The IRS thinks so, the California Franchise Tax Board thinks so, and both have been given the proper income tax copies.

I don't "claim" anything when I've handled an R-C control box and flown a model aircraft. I simply DID it. :-) No morse code or test for same required, NO license needed!

>> The Morsemen
>Who are they?

Tsk, tsk, tsk, a worshipper at the shrine of Eniac and double-dipped EE who CAN'T FIGURE THAT OUT?!? :-)

It is all those PCTAs who do 1906 thinking in the year 2006.

One of them is YOU. Another one is the knuckle-spanking Mother Superior that you turn into when you go cross-dressing.

Oh, my, ON-LINE REDEFINITIONS! Goll-eeee, Gomer, you sure NEED to win each and every argument, don't you? :-)

Tsk, tsk, tsk, the FCC privatized ALL radio operator license testing. That's not just amateur...it involves ALL RADIO SERVICES.

Hello? If you are going to MISDIRECT, at least be ACCURATE about it! That's only common sense, and a bit of fair play.

Justice.

LEGALLY, the FCC does NOT define morse code WORD RATE.

The FCC defines a lot of technical requirements in Part 97.
Yet they keep thinking the CCITT-ITU Telegram Standard will define word rate. It does not.

Tsk, you prattle on about "common sense." You haven't figured out what "morsemen" are or "morsemenship" is after over a year of use in here?!? :-)

No, I'm not.

The FCC did away with the Technician Plus class of license. They are all Technicians now. The Technician license has no requirement for a code exam. Should a Technician wish to use what were once Technician Plus priveleges, they're on their own to show eligibility.

Welp, that's something we'll just have to live with. It's also the reason I upgraded to General.

It means they don't like it and they have to struggle through it. It means they are perfect candidates for CWGet.

You're making that up.

What? Only astronomers get to calculate path loss in space?

The same point that you and W3RV are making when you kick around SSB vs CW in your field day and other scores. Why is it that comparing scores is only something that you can do?

Yes, you. You!

Where do stations come from now?

Many, many, many amateur just aren't interested in morse code, and many, many, many amateurs just aren't interested in contests.

But if we were able to have have 100% participation and every amateur were offered a manual morse code key and a downloaded copy of CWGet....

Sure he has. He's posted as himself and he's probably posting as someone else.

I don't enjoy morse code.

I think you're making that up.

Alternative scenario snipped.

The problem is that there isn't 100% participation in field day. It fails to meet the requirements of my scenario.

No, you vectored off when it was clear that the creation of the Conditional Class license using the "buddy-system" of testing was the original dumbing down of the ARS.

So there's a long, long tradition in the dumbing down of the amateur radio service.

If you choose to comment on somthing I say, then confine it to what I said. If you stick with that simple concept, you'll do OK.

Nope. I twas the creation of the Conditional License.

There appears to be. The ARRL VEC and other VECs are giving el 1 exams at 13-15WPM when Part 97 says 5WPM.

Part 95 requires no authorization, so he doesn't. And knowing his

Too bad you fucked up and here's the real article:

But then you TexASS queers can't read and write very well. I bet West

You didn't read the rot13 message that I left for you in the previous post. If you had, you would have realized that the isotropic power calculation was done by Lloyd Davies, and I gave him full credit for it. He values his privacy, and has requested that I use rot13 in any attribution which references one of his engineering calculations.

That explosion at your house must still be having after effects, because you seem to be confused. I'm not Dave Heil, and I'm not Stan Lawson either.

Hmmmm. Stan Lawson. Who might he be? It looks as though you might be referring to the owner of the Adolph Hitler web site at http://www.adolfhitler.ws. Why in the world would you be visiting Nazi web sites, Woger? Did those skinheads who allegedly visited you brainwash you somehow?

I just received my new rig and was wondering if anyone has had any problems with the IC-746PRO running full power during full duty cycles such as SSTV or PSK-31. I cant imagine why I would want to run PSK in full power, but I can on SSTV...but I dont want to overwork the rig, and I wanna give it sufficient time to cool if I need to. I just received my general ticket and im pretty new to the HF rigs all together, and I know its probably a stupid question to most veteran ham operators, so I apologize in advance for my ignorance!

Jeez Chris.
Whenever you get a hard-on for someone you really get a hard-on. Too bad for you, you weren't born with much.

Well Chris,
I wanted a nickname that would help me connect with no-code hams and nickle upgrades on usenet.

I had two really good nicks in mind, but I couldn't decide which one use, so I flipped a coin. It was either going to be 'Slow Code'

I'll probably have to switch to 'Hey Stupid' after code goes away.

Then write the FCC and tell them to retain the CW requirement and make it 5wpm for Tech, 13wpm for General and 20 wpm for Extra.

I don't want CB'ers to get the ham bands either.

That license of yours is pretty special, the FCC doesn't send out CB licenses anymore except no-code ones. You must be proud.

You should know your callsign by now too. What is it?

Do you listen to CB when you're on the internet? Try listening to CW, maybe it will make you feel like a ham instead of a no-code one.

Slow, I can understand that you might think that, but the awful truth is that I'm just so busy pushing buggy whips that I don't have much left for Morse Code. Sorry to disappoint you.

Well, we knew it was up for grabs, so why not? He seems to have the spare time, and he knows what its like to go wanting for an apology.
So he can be empathetic with many of the contributors to RRAP.

I currently have a HTX 202 and I am trying to fiind a good covert headset on E-Bay because I work as Maintenance and I can have the radio on at work as long as it can't be heard while I am working in the building because the tenants might take it the wrong way.

So if someone could help me and send me some links to sales if they have some or can help me out it would be appreciated.

When?

As of October 30, the number of current, unexpired FCC issued amateur radio licenses was:

Novice: 24,155
Technician: 287,293
Technician Plus: 34,851
General: 131,966
Advanced: 70,602
Extra: 108,545

Total 657,412.

FCC still counts Technician Plus separately from Technician.

The current number of Technicians amounts to 43.7006017...% of the total. That's not half. Some of them are code-tested, too.

> They are all Technicians now.

That is an untruth.

FCC still counts Technician Plus separately from Technician. The number of Technician Plus licenses is shrinking as Technician Pluses are renewed as Technician, expire, or upgrade.

> The Technician license has no requirement for a > code exam.

Yet some Technicians have passed a Morse Code test, and have some HF privileges.

> Should a Technician wish to use what were once Technician
> Plus priveleges, they're on their own to show eligibility.

Which requires that they retain a document showing their qualification.
Like keeping a copy of their old Technician Plus license.

However, that's not the point. FCC still counts Technician Plus separately from Technician. The number of Technician Plus licenses is shrinking as Technician Pluses are renewed as Technician, expire, or upgrade.

Not necessarily.

An amateur could "rarely" use Morse Code because they "rarely" get on the air. Or because they use some other mode a lot more.

What point is that?

W3RV and I actually participate in Field Day, and actually make the scores we claim. The QSOs are real.

You can compare scores all you want. How many points did you make in Another untruth by you.

Why was the creation of the Conditional a "dumbing down"? It had the same test requirements as General.

Why? You're not the moderator.

Besides, you don't confine your comments to what someone else said. Why should others confine their comments to what you said?

The Morse Code test consists of 5 minutes of Morse Code. How many words are in those tests?

At 5 wpm, there would be 25
At 13 wpm, there would be 65
At 15 wpm, there would be 75

(A word is 5 characters)

Incorrect. Part 95 authorizes everyone, as long as they meet the requirements.

No they're not. If they were, then you would be celebrationg a tradition of change, and change scares you to death.

Not sure I know of too many CB'er who can run 8 uhf links with a voting system and multiple recieve sites for a repeater.
I have yet to see any CB'ers run PTP microwave links, run a 31 cycle wide digital transmitter, run packet networks, design and build HF antennas for specific purposes, none of which have anything to do with morse code.

Not unlike a single engine land private pilot license, it's a license to LEARN, an extra class who passed a 20 wpm code test may know little or nothing about MANY technical aspects of ham radio, you have the license to operate, NOW the learning begins not the other way around.

Look at the number of callsigns that are expiring, either they are DEAD or they are a no code technician who never found what they were looking for in ham radio. Scads of KC8 callsigns are falling off. So what's the big concern? if they decided to stay they are either continuing to learn and have pursued other aspects of ham radio OR they have parked it somewhere on a 2m repeater, either way they don't bother me.

Jackass op's have been around since the first transmitters were on the air whether phone OR CW, yes, there are plenty of jackass CW op's too.
Learning morse is only an artificial spam filter for ham radio, so sorry, that's not the way it is, there are PLENTY of Extra Class hams who passed 20 wpm, got thier mic wired up and never touched a key again and there are plenty who behave very badly on VHF and HF who have passed code exams, the correlation between morse code and good operating habits should fall into the urban myths catagory.

Now excuse me, I need to finish polishing my Western Union model 2A I bought at the swap last weekend.

Ooops. Without inserting the word "TEST" in "Code-free" will automatically alert Mighty Macho Morseman Miccolis to run off again with his "helpful correction of mistakes." :-)

Tsk, Mighty Macho Morseman Miccolis will HAVE to "reply" with his "helpful correction of mistakes" a la the mighty macho morseman style of "knowing what is best for amateur radio" (as He sees it...).

True enough...and the OTHER half had to take a morse code TEST to get that AMATEUR license.

Miccolis must think the rest of us live in HIS reality (or rather ego-geographic-center-of-the-universe). In another week we Californians (about 30 million of us) will be voting on a number of state and local issues.
"Weldon and Sestak" don't seem to be on that ballot.

A mere 17 years ago there was no such thing as a "code-free" (meaning No Morse Code TEST) amateur radio license.

It must be a violation of their "professional" code of ethics? :-)

Usually to those kind of folks I just tell them to Kiss my ass. I've given that up on my MD's advice, he say I might catch something dangerous... :-)

True enough. They don't have ONE consideration that I saw my error and posted my own correction of it.

On every 'QWERTY' keyboard there is one key with an (unshifted) apostrophe and a (shifted) double-quote.
In the shorthand version of dimensioning, a foot is denoted by the suffix of an apostrophe while an inch is denoted by the suffix of double quote. As an example, my height can be written 5' 10" or, in longer form, five feet ten inches. In rapid typing (I learned touch-typing in middle school) it is possible to make a mistake in too much pressure on the Shift key and inadvertently type in the double-quote.

But...in the Grand Inquisitor manner of the might macho morsemen, a type by an NCTA is a CAPITAL OFFENSE, punishable by a lifetime of message comments about that typo...and NEVER acknowledging that it was corrected!

I remember. Somewhere along that line, Reg Edwards' ready-togo small computer program was mentioned. Reg is a UK ham of long time and has a bunch of small programs made just for many particular amateur radio applications. If you still have a need, I'll dig out his URL and post it here. Reg appears in rec.radio.amateur.homebrew once in a while.

According to Mighty Macho Morseman Miccolis, anyone trying morse code "WILL" like it! :-)

Art Collins? :-) Hmmm...I thought he went to ISU, not OSU.

USAF SAC was the igniter of the single-channel SSB use and Collins Radio of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, got the contracts.

Never mind that RCA Corporation ALSO got the contracts and supplied single-channel SSB on HF to the USAF. Collins had the more-savvy-PR and started selling to the commercial world and to amateurs. Collins Radio got started with Art making transmitters to-order before WW II. RCA didn't go the full-on route of marketing, probably too busy doing the bigger thing with television.

>Sam Morse desinged his code to be marked on a tape with a pen.

True enough and recorded history of 1844. On some history website there is a digitized image of the famous "What hath God wrought" message marked on tape. Smithsonian?

Alfred Vail, benefactor of Morse, came up with a CHANGE of "morse code" from the original all-numbers scheme to the representation of each English letter to a dot-dash combo.
About the same time Morse and the Vail railroad works just couldn't make a reliable pen mechanism.

Radio was tried in 1895 by Marconi in Switzerland, using only the presence of a radio signal. In 1896 Marconi sent simple character groups in morse code for a public demonstration in Italy. In the same year Aleksandr Popov in Russia. 1896 is FIFTY-TWO YEARS AFTER the first Morse-Vail Telegraph System debuted in Baltimore, MD. This 'morse code' thing was rather mature by 1896.

The point about 'morse code' is that it was technologically SIMPLE. An electrical circuit is either on or off. Early radio was technologically SIMPLE. Transmitters' "RF output" was either on or off. Morse code was used because the two SIMPLE things were compatible. It is total bullshit to imagine that morse code had some kind of "state-of-the-art" magic at the beginning. It was technologically CONVENIENT, established (in wireline comms), and mature (lots of morse code operators after 52 years of use worldwide).

>I've never met anyone from tha FCC. I saw Riley at Dayton. Ed Hare,

You must mean the 'Dayton Hamvention?' :-) Gotta be EXACT in everything in here lest the mighty macho morsemen try to be "helpful" with their "mistake corrections"!

Sometimes I think the ARRL confuses itself with all those "official" things it has. It's a clever descriptor for whatever they are describing, gives it some glow of 'authority.'

Yes, all must do as the Morsemen do, marching in ranks to

Of course they do. They used to be Tech Plusses, a distinctly different class of license.

They're Technicians now, perhaps they just don't know it. They'll find

This is what I said, including one typo: "So put all USA licensed amateurs in fron of a station equipped with a morse code key and with CWGet and total their scores."

I said nothing about standardizing stations. YOU brought it up.

Put a morse code key and a copy of CWGet in front of every USA licensed amateur, turn them loose in a CW contests, and total their scores.

You vectored off.

It wasn't performed in front of a steely-eyed FCC examiner after a 9 hour drive uphill both ways.

It was a change that allowed people who were unwilling to put forth an effort to join the amateur service. Smaller effort means they won't value their license and start misbehaving. It's an extension of the riff-raff argument.

Look, you come on here and try to change the parameters of my "impossible" scenario, you want to tell me all about something I'm not discussing, then you tell my I'm making stuff up and telling untruths.
I don't appreciate it. If you can't behave, you'll just have to put me in your killfile.

CB'ers are a dying breed also. It's getting to be you can't even find 2 models of CB radio at WalMart or the auto supply store anymore so ham bands are in no trouble. Most truckers are using FRS channel 4 for road info now, still some on Channel 19 but even that is starting to drop off with alot of them now having mobile internet links in their rigs.
I know one guy who has complete satellite TV and wireless net access in his sleeper cab via a laptop on a swinging arm righ over his bunk in the sleeper. He can e-mail or talk to the XYL in real time via a camera right from his truck.
Who needs CB and Ham rigs anymore? Many more are using NexTel to talk back to home and on the road via talkgroups.
Rest easy pal! Ham radio is in NO WAY threatened. Trust me.

Ham radio is HOPLESSELY OBSOLETE Bunkie !
It used to be a big thing 20 or 30 Years ago when the local ham could talk halfway around the world right from his basement or spare room ham shack.

Today you have 10 year olds doing the same thing thru Broadband and ISDN links via a computer.

Ham Radio is NOT NEEDED ANY MORE. Get that thru the iron plate in yer head and you'll sleep better.

I have a friend that just bought a used Ten Tec Scout, it came with a 40m and a 80m band module. He is looking for 30m and maybe 15/17m as well.

If you have any of these you'd like to sell, please send me an email.

I heard from a friend of a friend over on The Hill that this is THE place to hang out for a chance at getting my hands on some homobrew.
To begin with, I'd like to know what homobrew is. It sounds yummy! I am supposed to ask for somebody named Mark something or other. I was told that Mark is a former Top Secret rated Army Colonel and is now a Geophysicist somewhere in Michigan and is a partially disabled consultant. Oh, and I was informed that he has a pet chimpanzee as well.
I do so hope I've narrowed the descriptors down enough so that one of you can be of ASSistance to me. You will be forever in my debt and my back door will always be open to you should you wish to come visit.

The people who know Morse code would probably turn it down as they would not Granted not all words are five characters long. However, in order to develop the test, the "standard" word is defined as 5 characters even though word lengths may vary. This is then used to determine the character count in the test message.

For 5 minutes of Morse Code:
At 5wpm, the character count is 125 characters
At 13wpm, the character count is 325 characters
At 15wpm, the character count is 375 characters
At 20wpm, the character count is 500 characters

The number of characters, not words, copied is the basis on which the code tests are graded if one uses the 1 minute solid copy option to pass. This compensates for the fact that not all words are the same length. For the 5wpm test, that means only 25 characters in a row need to be correctly copied. While all alphabetic characters count as one each, punctuation and prosigns count as two each due to their length.

That's what the no-codes thought before the hurricane Nawlings. All them welfare hams couldn't communicate, until the 20wpm Extras got things going for them again.

Now get your lazy ass back to CB before Markie sends you a turd, or RadioGuy starts humpin your leg.

2302. OT - HDTV NTSC/ATSC/QAM

OK, I know this is OT, but I'm going crazy surfing google trying to find a straight answer, and I figure someone in this NG probably knows the answer.

I'm shopping for an LCD TV. It will be fed via my local cable system. I do not currently subscribe to digital cable, just the normal analog stuff on the normal "cable ready" frequencies. I understand that all analog TV will be going away in a few years so obviously I should buy a TV that already has built-in digital signal reception capability via cable input. Some of the TVs on the market have different combinations of NTSC tuners and/or ATSC tuners and/or QAM tuners. I know ATSC is for off-the-antenna analog channels, but which built-in tuner(s) must my TV have to receive the current analog cable channels, the upcoming digital signals from local stations (presumably available via cable), and any digital cable channels?

Help!

ATSC: off-the-antenna digital channels. Also works on some digital cable systems.

NTSC: off-the-antenna analog channels. Also works with analog cable.
(but not scrambled/premium channels)

QAM: for many (most?) digital cable systems.

If you get a cable box from the cable company then the tuner is irrelevant - the cable box is the tuner. You connect it to the TV with component or HDMI cables and bypass the TV's tuners altogether.
Likewise for satellite. Though if you have a decent antenna available you might be able to use off-the-antenna ATSC digital reception for your locals for better picture quality and to save a few $$$. (you might also get a few channels that way that aren't on cable)

The end-of-analog mandate applies only to off-the-antenna broadcasts; cable systems are not required to force all their customers to digital.
I'm sure a NTSC-only TV will work with cable for a long time to come.

ATSC tuners are required by law in newer TVs above a certain screen size. The mandate is gradually phased in. Eventually all new TVs will be required to have ATSC tuners.

And yet you refuse to learn CW so you could use it to save someone else's

Nah, all HF bands are for sale. Lord help the rest of the world after the FCC finishes their work. People like SC are the reason for this.

Why would voice not work? Just one possible scenario. Let me see, the guy who needs help while climbing Mt. Rainier in WA could use his QRP rig, which has a mic, to instead send CW to Denmark, and hope that they know what county Mt. Rainier is in WA, so that they can dispatch the help he needs. Makes perfect sense to me.

SC, you truly are a moronic fucktard. Find a better argument. This one doesn't hold water. You keep waffling between this one, and your true colors of keeping anyone who chooses not to learn code off of HF. Personally, and the consensus agrees, HF would be much better without you.

DXCC COUNTRY/ENTITY REPORT: According to the AR-Cluster Network for the week of Sunday, 29th/October, through Sunday, 5th/November there were 231 countries active. Countries available: 3A, 3B8, 3C0, 3D2, 3DA, 3V, 3W, 3X, 4J, 4L, 4S, 4U1U, 4X, 5B, 5H, 5N, 5R, 5V, 5X, 5Z, 6W, 6Y, 7Q, 7X, 8P, 8Q, 8R, 9A, 9G, 9H, 9J, 9K, 9M2, 9M6, 9N, 9Q, 9V, 9Y, A2, A3, A4, A5, A6, A7, A9, AP, BV, BY, C3, C5, C6, C9, CE, CE0Y, CE9, CM, CN, CP, CT, CT3, CU, CX, D2, D4, D6, DL, DU, EA, EA6, EA8, EA9, EI, EK, EL, EP, ER, ES, EU, EX, EY, F, FG, FJ, FK, FM, FO, FR, FT5X, FY, G, GD, GI, GJ, GM, GU, GW, HA, HB, HB0, HC, HI, HK, HL, HP, HR, HS, HZ, I, IS, J3, J5, J6, J7, JA, JD/o, JT, JW, JY, K, KG4, KH0, KH2, KH6, KL, KP2, KP4, LA, LU, LX, LY, LZ, OA, OD, OE, OH, OH0, OK, OM, ON, OX, OY, OZ, P2, P4, PA, PJ2, PJ7, PY, PZ, R1FJ, S5, S9, SM, SP, ST, SU, SV, SV5, SV9, T7, T9, TA, TF, TG, TI, TK, TL, TR, TT, TU, TY, UA, UA2, UA9, UK, UN, UR, V2, V3, V4, V5, V6, V7, VE, VK, VK9C, VK9N, VP2M, VP2V, VP5, VP8, VP8/h, VP9, VQ9, VR, VU, XE, XF4, XT, XU, XW, XX9, XZ, YA, YB, YI, YJ, YK, YL, YN, YO, YS, YU, YU6, YV, Z2, Z3, Z7, ZA, ZB, ZC4, ZD7, ZD8, ZD9, ZF, ZK1/n, ZK1/s, ZK3, ZL, ZP, ZS

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

5A, LIBYA (Topband Activity). An international team of operators will activate Libya between November 15-29th, using the callsign 5A7A (See OPDX.765 and OPDX.774). Rudi, DK7PE, one of the 5A7A operators, announced this past week the following frequency combination will be used during their 160m operations:

* During JA openings - TX frequency will be 1.821 MHz (QSX 1.825 MHz).
* After the JA window is closed they may change to 1.824.5 MHz (QSX up 5) for North America in case 1.821 is covered there with QRM.
They will use a TITANEX V160E vertical for transmitting, but their major challenge will be the reception side. They expect a beverage not to perform very well over the high conducting soil directly on the beach, let alone the space limitations. Therefore, they will use a Pre-Amp/FES (KD9SV) in connection with a Pennant receiving antenna and also with a K9AY system. Rudi states that he will also bring his well proved Coax loop with him. For more info and updates, visit: http://5a7a.gmxhome.de

8Q, MALDIVES. Michele, IK5ZUI, is now reportedly working on Maldive Islands for next 12 months. He is expected to be active as 8Q7IM. More details are forthcoming on: http://www.mdxc.org

A7, QATAR. Some operators from Qatar will activate the special callsign A70RRY from now until December 15th to celebrate the 15th Asian Games 2006 which is going to start in Doha on December 1st. Activity this past week has been on 160/20/15/10 meters CW/SSB. QSL via EA7FTR. Please see EA7FTR on QRZ.com for details on QSLing.

D4, CAPE VERDE. Operator Luca, IK2NCJ, will be active as D44AC during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band entry.

DXCC NEWS. Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Branch Manager, informs OPDX that the following operations are approved for DXCC credit:
3V6T - Tunisia; Operation from July 5-15th, 2006
Operation from October 22-31st, 2006
Operation from November 22-30th, 2006
3V7A - Tunisia; Operation from May 22-31st, 2006
9G5UR - Ghana; Current operation effective September 22nd, 2006
9M0/9M2TO - Spratly Islands; June 9-12th, 2006
9Q1NT - Democratic Republic of the Congo; Current operation effective September 22nd, 2006
C91TL - Mozambique; Operation from June 29th-July 13th, 2006
FO/F8UFT - Clipperton Island; Operation from March 1-31st, 2005
OJ0LA - Market Reef; September 9-15th, 2006
ZA/IK7JWX - Albania; Operation from July 10-30th, 2006
ZL9BSJ - Auckland & Campbell Island; Operation on September 12th, 2002

E51, NORTH COOK ISLANDS. Operators Bill/N7OU and Bob/W7YAQ are now active from Penrhyn Atoll (OC-082) as E51PEN and E51PDX, respectively, until November 18th. Activity will be on 160-10 meters, mostly on CW, but with some SSB and RTTY. They will be running 100 watts and verticals. QSL via their home callsigns. ADDED NOTE: Operators Mike/KM9D and Jan/KF4TUG, who have been active as E51QMA from Penrhyn Atoll (OC-082) this past week, are expected to be QRT by the time you read this. They plan to set sail towards Christmas Island (T32). QSL via OM2SA.

FT1, CROZET ISLAND (On the Birds!). Nicolas, F4EGX (ex-FT1WK), will be again in Crozet as FT1WM. He was expected to leave Reunion Island on November 3rd and head to Crozet. He is expected to head back to France on December 31st. Unfortunately, Nicolas will not be active on HF bands, but he will be on the satellites only.

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-115. Berkin, TA3J, will be active as TA3J/0 from Antalya - Sican Adasi (Rat Island, MIA MTC-099, Grid: KM56JU), between November 11-26th (weather permitting). Activity will be on 160, 80, 40, 20, 15, 10, 2 meters and the WARC bands; on all modes. QSL via Nilay, TA3YJ, direct (only SASE and 1 IRC, no green stamps please) or by the bureau. No eQSL. SWL QSL cards are OK. The TA3J/0 Web Page is: http://www.geocities.com/ta3j0/1

EU-113. A team of Greek operators, all members of the Radio Amateur Association of Greece (http://www.raag.org), are planning a DXpedition to the rocky islet of Falkonera (MIA MG-087) from the Lighthouse there (ARLHS: GRE 012, WLOTA: L0740 and TWLHD-WLH: SV-029) between November 15-19th. They will use the special callsign SX8F. Operators mentioned are: Cliff/SV1JG, Nikiforos/ SV1EEX, Theodor/SV1GRM, Lykourgos/SW1GZL, Sotirios/SV1HER, Dionisios/SV1HHC and Makis/SV1IZR. The team believes this will be the first activation of the rocky islet of Falkonera and of the Lighthouse too. There are not any inhabitants on the island. Activity will be on 160-6 meters plus VHF, UHF and SHF. They plan to bring plenty of equipment and antennas. Operations will include CW/SSB/PSK/FSK441/FM. QSL Manager is SV1HER. For more details about Falkonera DXpedition and the Lighthouse, visit the web page at: http://users.sch.gr/nkontopoul/sx8f

EU-172. Operator Norbert, DL1HTW, will be active as OZ/DL1HTW from Langeland Island (FY-019 for the Danish Islands Award), now through November 11th. Activity will be on 80-10 meters SSB and SSTV. QSL via his home callsign, direct or by the bureau.

NA-219. A group of German operators will be active from Elbow Cay which belongs to Cay Sal Bank Cays Group in the Bahamas early in 2007. The ARLHS Lighthouse is BAH 018. IOTA NA-219 is on the most wanted IOTA lists in North America. The callsign will be announced later. The team, consisting of Bodo/DL3OCH, Rene/ DL2JRM, Dan/DL5SE and Daniel/DL5YWM, will leave Key Largo, Florida, around the 3rd of January and plans to be active until January 9th. The date can vary because of the weather. They will have two stations on the air and will operate on 160-10 meters CW/SSB on the suggested IOTA frequencies. Bodo/DL3OCH will take EME equipment which is good for 70cm and 23cm contacts. It will be the first time that the C6A prefix will be on the air on 23cm. Skeds are very welcome. Due to the high costs (7000 USDs just for the transportation) any donations are welcome. The QSL Manager is DL3OCH. For more updates and information, please check the following Web site at:

http://www.qslnet.de/member/na219/english/index.htm

OC-146. Operator Pele, YB8TAF, will be active from Celebes [Sulawesi] Island (WLOTA LH-2246) as YB8TAF/p from November 9-14th. His activity will also include an entry in the JIDX Contest (November 11-12th). QSL via EA5KB (QRZ.com).

ML0, JERSEY. Mat, F5SHQ, will be active as MJ0ASP during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m) entry. QSL via F5SHQ.

OA, PERU. Martijn, PA3GFE, will be active as OA#/homecall from now until December 10th. Activity will be on 40-10 meters. He is expected to be active as OA4O during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th). QSL via his homecall.

ON60, BELGIUM. Members of the UBA Radio Club in Belgium may use the "ON60" prefix until February 10, 2007, to celebrate the 60th annivesary of the UBA, the IARU Society for Belgium.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
SO9Q via SP9QMP
UK8ACO direct via 700000, Tashkent, PO Box 0
UA9JMB via RA9JR
V25JK via W4BCX
YT5J via YU1JW

Bob, N2OO, announced that he is now handling the QSLs for 3B8FP (1987-1989) and S79KMB (1991-1999). These will no longer be handled by KN2N. Only QSL for these dates mentioned.

BUREAU CLOSINGS. The following Bureaus are now closed for the ARRL Outgoing Bureau Service:
4J - Azerbaijan HV - Vatican City State
C2 - Nauru ST - Sudan
C6 - Bahamas V4 - Saint Kitts & Nevis

Martin, V51W (ex-V51WM, also DJ7KP), will forward QSLs for all QSOs in the 2006 CQWW DX SSB Contest via the the German DARC QSL-office. No need to send cards in advance. QSL Manager is DJ7SX.

As you know, there will be plenty of activity from the Laccadives Islands next month (#2 on the top ten for DXCC). Jean Michel, F6AJA, suggests to visit the following Web page to see the complete (possibly) set of QSLs from previous Laccadives activities. Please visit:
http://LesNouvellesDX.free.fr
Just follow "galerie de QSL" and then "les dix contrees les plus recherchees"... and you will find a set of cards for the 10 most wanted, including the Laccadives....

XF4DL LOGS. The online logs for XF4DL can be found at:
http://www.logsearch.de/They reportedly have over 56k QSOs in the log. QSL information is as follows:

- only North America - all QSLs via the bureau or direct to N6AWD
- all others - QSL via the bureau or direct to DL9NDS

QSL ZT2V via ZS2DL. Activity was during the CQWW SSB Contest from Port Elizabeth, South Africa. This is the first activation of the ZT2 prefix since 1939. Operator was Donovan, ZS2DL. Look for him with this callsign again in the next CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th).

SPECIAL EVENT (ISWL). The International Shortwave League (ISWL), continues with their 60th (Diamond) anniversary celebrations throughout the month of November. Look for the following to be active this month:

GB6SWL - Activity between November 11-12th, from Colchester in Essex. The station is being run by the Colchester ARS. (A Club Affiliated to the ISWL).

GB6SWL - Activity between November 18-19th, from Annan in Dumfrieshire, Scotland. John, GM6LYJ, will be the main operator.

GB6SWL - Activity between November 25-26th, from Tewkesbury in Gloucestershire. Walt, G3NYY, will be the main operator.

The ISWL Club's callsigns GX4BJC/P and MX1SWL/P will also be active throughout October. With only 2 months left for these celebrations, the ISWL Awards Program is open to non members for a very small fee to cover postage to any country in the world. Please visit the following Web page for all the details, including QSL information and the Special Diamond Anniversay Awards etc... at: http://www.iswl.org.uk

T40, CUBA. Operators Winston/CO2WF, Willy/CO2MHZ (ex-CO2UG) and Juan Carlos/CO2JD will be active as T40C during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL Manager is Phil, N1KI. Activity will be from Bocaciega, at Habana West Beach's.

TI, COSTA RICA. Dick, W0RAA, reports that he will be leaving on November 21st for Costa Rica as a member of a team for the CQWW DX CW Contest. He is expected to be active before the contest signing as TI5/W0RAA, and will operate RTTY on 14085 kHz (+/-) and PSK31 on 14070 kHz (+/-). Dick may also be active on some SSB and will try to operate split (listening UP). He hopes to hand out Costa Rica on PSK31 and RTTY, which he believes is needed by many. QSL via W0RAA with a SASE.

TZ, MALI (Update). Everything is a go for the members of the VooDoo Contest Group which will be active as TZ5A for the second year in a row during the 2006 CQWW CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi/Multi entry. QSL via G3SXW. Operators mentioned are: Ed/AA7A, Roger/G3SXW, Fred/G4BWP, John/ G4IRN, Robert/GM3YTS, Vince/K5VT, Mike/KC7V and Lee/KY7M. The callsign TZ5A will be used only during the contest. During precontest activity, operators will operate with their own callsign, and each operator will handle their own QSLs. Look for the following callsigns to be active outside of the contest:
November 18-24th and November 27-30th

TZ6NS via AA7A (also QRV RTTY and 2m EME)
TZ6MF via KC7V (also QRV 160m and 2m EME)

November 18-24th November 21-24th
TZ6WP via G4BWP TZ6RN via G4IRN
TZ6RF via GM3YTS (also QRV 160m)
TZ6VT via K5VT
TZ6LF via KY7M

VK9C, COCOS-KEELING (Update). Charlie/W0YG and Barry/N0KV are now active as VK9CGG until November 20th. They were heard this past week on various bands CW/SSB. Seems to be plently of CW activity on 40/12/10 meters, and on SSB, watch 15 meters. QSL via W0YG (direct only).

VP8, ANTARCTICA. Alan, VK6CQ (aka VK0LD, VP8PJ anf 9V1DX), will be active again from the summer Base Camp at Patriot Hills, Ellsworth Land, until December 10th. He suggests the following frequencies on CW: 7003, 10103 and 14003 kHz. His equipment will be a Yaesu FT-897D w/100 watts into an unterminated Vee beam orientated at 011/191 degrees. Alan states, "Please bear in mind that this is not a DXpedition - I am on a work assignment and my free time is rather limited, but I will try to be operational every day for an hour or so subject to work load." He will be signing VP8PJ from Patriot Hills base. He mentions that the Chile Telecomm Authority has also issued him a reciprocal licence CE/VK0LD (the XQ prefix is issued to Chilean residents only). Alan will use CE8/VK0LD from Punta Arenas and CE9/VK0LD from the Chilean refuge Arturo Parodi (near Patriot Hills Base Camp) or Vinson Base Camp (120 miles North West of Patriot Hills). QSL Manger is Dominik, DL5EBE. For more details and updates, visit his Web site at: http://www.geocities.com/vk0ld/home.html ADDED NOTE: By the time you read this, Adam, K2ARB, will be finishing his activity from Punta Arenas as CE8/K2ARB and will be heading to Patriot Hills. His activity will between November 15th and January 27th. His callsign is not known yet. Adam states that he plans to operate on his days off on 40/30/20 meters CW and will check in, when possible, on the Antarctic SSB nets. He will also be keeping a blog about his journey at: http://www.k2arb.blogspot.com Alan will try to put an entry in about his operating frequencies and times once he gets going and will talk about what is happening at the base.

WP2, U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS. Kenji (Ken), JH3AIU/K2AJ (ex-JR3EDE), will be active as WP2AIU from November 20-24th. Activity will be on 160-10 meters, CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK. He will be mainly on 160/80 meters, the WARC bands and the Digital mode. QSL via JH3AIU.

XT2, BURKINA FASO (Update). The Provins ARS (F6KOP) has announced their next DXpedition will be to Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso, between January 6-20th (See OPDX.780). The F6KOP group announced this past week that the Bukinabe authorities have issued the following callsigns for their DXpedition. The DXpedition's callsign will be XT2C. Each operator was also isssued a personal callsign as follows:
Bob/N6OX: XT2CI Gerard/F2JD: XT2JD
Bill/N2WB: XT2CJ Franck/F5TVG: XT2CD

Dieter/OE8KDK: XT2CK Alain/F5LMJ: XT2CE
Frank/F4AJQ: XT2CC Jean Paul/F8BJI: XT2BJ
Gerard/F2VX: XT2CA Bernard/F9IE: XT2IE
Their web page will be operational very soon.

XU, CAMBODIA. Operator Bruce, AA4XR, will be active as XU7ADF between November 23-29th. Activity will include the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (band not provided)/Low-Power entry. QSL via AA4XR.

ZA, ALBANIA. Operators Tom/DL2RMC and Heiko/DL1RTL will be on a holiday expedition to here between November 8-13th. They plan to sign ZA/homecall and be active on 160-10 meters on all modes. Also, look for them in the WAE RTTY Contest. They will have two stations w/100 watts using yagis and verticals. QSL via their home callsigns, by the bureau or direct.

ZD9, TRISTAN DA CUNHA. Operator Brian, ZD9BCB, is expected to be active sometime this week from Gough Island (IOTA AF-030) until September 2007. No QSL route or bands/modes of activity were provided. Meanwhile, Andy, ZD9BV, continues to be active from the same island, especialy on 20 and 17 meters SSB. There have been some QSNs reported on 10 meters. QSL only direct.

ZS3, SOUTH AFRICA. Joe, AA4NN, will be active as ZS3NN from the Northern Cape of South Africa two days prior to CQ WW CW Contest (November 25-26th). Activity will be on CW only 160-10 meters, plus the WARC bands. His location is on the beach south of Port Nolloth. During the CQWW DX CW Contest, he will be a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via AA4NN.

I am sure he can.

And I will be glad to attach copies of OTHER N9OGL posts that were forwarded via thge same pathway that were legitimate.

Toiddie's been TOS'ed from his ISP's before. The best he can hope for is the use of remailers to keep from getting canned yet again.

Just once.

Been listening on and off since the original posting above and NEVER heard it once. Just heard some commercial USB around 13.551 that sounded like marine traffic from Europe. Apart from that, it's been dead air static on 13.556 LSB.

Conclusion: Omega One Radio exists in your head.

Who's "stave" and what to what do you make reference in "evedence"...?!?!

> but you sure sound jealous

Jealous of WHAT, fatboy?

Being known as an illegal broadcaster?

Hardly.

As for Toiddie being "heard across eastern North America"...guess what...?!?! I already have DXCC and WAS with ALL of North, Central AND South America confirmed.

So why would I be jealous of poor programming played into an SSB signal, Mork?

Steve, I suggest you read Part 15, Part 15 has nothing to do with power (in Wattage) it has to do with the field strength (maininly the electrical field of the electromaganetic wave) you can put out 100 watts and still have the field strength as prescribed under part 15 (on 13.556 MHz it 15,848 microvolts per meter at a distance of 30 meters (90 Feet) CB radio's which run 4 - 5 watts is 10,000 microvolts per meter at 30 meters.....but you wouldn't know anything about that now would you??

That's the problem with ham operators, they are use to working with wattage, under part 15 it's a little different. I know I guy who builts part 15 device and has done for 15 to 20 years now and he tell you the same thing I told steve, but again hey stebie is a ham and only mess with wattage.

Nah, nothing of the sort. Dumbass fucktards like you are the reason most don't find the motivation to get licensed. No one wants to talk to your ilk. And soon enough, the HF bands will be much better. Hopefully a CB'er with HF privileges will move next door to you.

2486. mic humm help

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc

From: ml <m@di.net>
Message-ID: <m-D92E28.22231106112006@news.verizon.net> Source record: 24366

hi

was hoping that someone might be able to share some advice rig MVField mic stock vs Heil w/heil cable (goldline 5) when i tx there is a slight but clearly noticable humm like a 60cycle sounds a little like the buzz of a transformer my tube stereo would do that if i touched a speaker wire w/o gnd here is what i observed:

if i unscrew the mic plug at rig and pull it out a little so the mic metal connector dosn't touch the rig (leaving enough for pins to contact) humm goes away if i use the stock mic or another yaesu mic no humm not a drop

if i use my astron to power the rig instead of it's built in supply the humm goes away

both the rig and the mic etc are all kind of new moving the heil cable or mic location hum is same

i tried removing and adding ground wires to the chassy gnd screw no change (thou my coax shields are grounded)

my guess is the rig and it's connections are 'ok' since the stock mic's don't have any problems so guessing the problem is isolated between the heil cable/mic but i dunno somthing is not right and i know it's prob simple what is the likely cauze of the hum? whats the best test and or fix??

any help is appreciated

When you place 100 or more posts a day, is that not a "crapathon"?
Sure it is.

You haven't the sense to see that Slow Code is returning your spams in kind

Showing your stupidity again, are you? If you'd learn to read headers you'd realize that I am not Steve. Of course getting that through to a dunderhead such as yourself is next to impossible.
But what would a self-proclaimed Geophysicist such as yourself know about headers?

I finally get it..... Slow Code is the CB of these newsgroups!!!!!

Just so all get the point, (including Slow Code, who is obviously, well, "slow" like they used to say way back when I went to high school, if you know what I mean), Slow Code's posts here is the example of the equivalent of what happened to CB in many areas of the country... The absolute dumbing down and lack of any useful content whatsoever. Unfortunately, like the typical bad apple, these areas created a stereotype of all of the CB fraternity, despite some (though relatively few) really dedicated and intelligent people on their band.

Fortunately, no matter what the FCC and ARRL do about whether code is required for a general license, the ham bands will never get as bad as the crapola that Slow Code has interjected here!!! (and in retrospect, CB band is probably not as bad as the crap SC pumps out daily.) The CW requirement has absolutely nothing to do with the posts SC is submitting, just his sicko need to try to monopolize the groups and drive off as many people as possible while attracting as much attention as he can.

In fact, if ARRL/FCC were to announce tomorrow that 20wpm would be required for a general license and 50 for an extra, SC would be on the other side of the fence trying to get people to respond to get the code requirement removed, as there clearly is no chance in hell he could ever pass a real test (e3ven the current 5wpm). It's all bluster and posturing, and has nothing to do with anything in the real world. I've seen this way tioo many times before, and most of the clients I've encountered with the particular problem SC exhibits are on some serious medication most of their lives.... (As further evidence, note his moniker Slow Code... If he was really serious about the code, he would be using something more appropriate like Fast Code...)

Take care, and if you actually see the mysterious (and "affected") Slow Code, please check to see if he's taken his meds for the day before you hang around very long. His type tends to have rather severe and often violent mood swings....

Have you a reason for posting this message twice? Perhaps you thought the No-Coders wouldn't get it the first time through. (I agree...)
It is painfully obvious that a select few of you are not gifted with a sense of humor. You take umbrage at Slow Code's comments while being unable to read between the lines and see the tongue-in-cheek humor.
Lighten up, guys.
You go on to make an off-the-wall statement that, "and most of the clients I've encountered with the particular problem SC exhibits are on some serious medications." Is that so? And you are an authority on such? Take a break, Rick. Pop a Thorazine and calm down for Chrissake!

Aw, come ON, Rick! You've gotten your sphincter twisted into a knot over a few posts that were obviously done to raise the ire of humorless Hams such as yourself. Lighten up, already! Do your heart a favor. See the humor.
Your last comment is the icing on the Angry Cake when you say of Slow Code, "His type tends to have rather severe and often violent mood swings...."
And you know this, how? Did you toss a lamp against the wall while reading Slow Code's posts? Kick your cat across the room?

I'd posit that you are being a bit moody yourself. Your current Hissy Fit is a prime example. You played right into Slow Code's hands.

Thank you for the laughs.

Odd. If you take the formula for an isotropic radiator emitting P watts and solve it for the electric field, e, you come up with e = sqr(30*P)/r at a distance of "r" meters (see my earlier posts).

For a power of 5 watts at a distance of 30 meters, that becomes e = sqr(30*5)/30 = 0.408 volts/meter = 408,000 microvolts/meter.

That number is 400 times larger than the value you quoted. Where in the heck are you obtaining figures like 10,000 microvolts/meter? Have you been consulting Woger again?

It sounds very much like an induction ground loop. When you remove the outer connector, you are probably breaking a current loop that nearby 60 Hz magnetic fields are inducing. The problem mic must somehow allow small induced currents to flow through its cable, and you need to put a stop to them somehow. I'd start checking the mic for failed components since your other mics work just fine. Maybe the mic impedance is mismatched. Hard to tell at this distance, but in that case an impedance matching device would probably help you.

2515. CW haters don't want anything getting in between them and a microphone.

But that's to be expected, shitty operators make a service shitty.

I hope you people realize if you make ham radio a codeless service, it will get shitty too.

This is what I want:

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Now, now slow idiot. Your delusions seek to gain the better of you, hold out and fight back man, get yourself some decent backbone!

There is no danger of tossing morse onto the trash-pile and following progress. Indeed, many works in art, literature, poems, novels, etc.
have documented and made lesson of how often times a man can be made a fool and prisoner of his own fears. You are doing no less, but before our eyes you demonstrate a real life example. Quite educating really.

No, we need not fear amateur radio becoming a chitty service, we only need to fear chitty hams--such as the like of you...

Yes, I am hilarious. Sad part is that you are too dense to pick up on the nuances of what I wrote, but then that's typical of you.

Believe me SC, even Mark is above your level of intelligence, spelling included. You are WAY out of your league attempting to debate me. Sure, call me a piss-ant. BFD. Again, and as I have previously informed you, no one, including the FCC, ARRL, _______ <---name your group here, give a rat's ass what you think. Send mail/email to whomever you wish. They'll soon file your garbage in the circular file where it properly belongs.

Air and vacuum have nearly identical permittivity and permeability - the properties which control the impedance of air and of free space and which in turn relate electric field strength to the spatial power density. It sounds to me as though you are simply blowing smoke and have no real understanding of what you just attempted to write.

Wrong. In the case of an electromagnetic field, Gauss' law is only one of four equations (Maxwell's equations) that are needed to determine the electric field strength. Since a changing magnetic field can produce an electric field too (Faraday's law), Gauss' law is not enough. The only time it is sufficient is in the electrostatic case.

Fortunately, the case under discussion doesn't require the solution of a set of partial differential equations (Maxwell's equations), because the solution has been incorporated into the idea of the impedance of free space. That includes the permittivity of the medium (as used by Gauss' law) plus the permeability of the medium, and it allows one to express the power density in space with an Ohm's law type of equation that involves only the electric field and the impedance.

That simple equation says that 5 watts of radiated power will produce an electric field strength which is 40 times larger than that claimed by N9OGL. That's why I asked him if he'd been consulting with Woger again.

Perhaps he's been consulting with you instead. You just got an "F" in electromagnetics.

Stanley, you don't know anything about it, you can't even find the correct ARES website for Marshall County, WV. You are a know-nothing

P.S., asshole, what's the make and color of Roger's car since you say

When you get a more advanced license, you can become as cool as Woger is like this:

GLENDALE, WV: The FCC sent a Warning Notice November 9, 1999, to General licensee Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, citing evidence that the licensee had been "deliberately and maliciously interfering with the radio operations of other licensed amateurs" on 20 meters. "This interference has occurred at various times in the last several months and includes broadcasting music and other unidentified transmissions," said a letter from FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth. Hollingsworth warned that continued operation of the type described could result in a fine or license revocation proceeding, and he requested that the licensee contact him to discuss the allegations.

GLENDALE, WV [UPDATE]: The FCC had written General licensee Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, on March 29, 2000, advising that it had been made aware of "an ongoing personal dispute" between Wiseman and Advanced licensee Steven A. Tunder, N8WGM, that included allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters. FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth cautioned Tunder and Wiseman to review ï¿½97.1 of the Amateur Radio rules and "to make certain that whatever disputes that may exist are not carried over to Amateur Radio frequencies." Hollingsworth invited the two licensees to contact him to discuss the matter. Wiseman alleged in a subsequent communication to the ARRL that Tunder had been harassing him and that he had made the FCC aware of it in the first place. Wiseman indicated that he had been in touch with Hollingsworth to clarify the situation. The FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters.

GLENDALE, WV: The FCC requested July 11, 2000, that Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, retake the General examination elements under the supervision of an ARRL-VEC volunteer examiner team. Wiseman must appear for retesting by September 11, 2000, or his license will be canceled. Applicants appearing for re-examination are granted an Amateur Radio license consistent with the elements passed. The FCC had written Wiseman on March 29, 2000, advising that it had been made aware of "an ongoing personal dispute" between Wiseman and another licensee that included allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters. FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth invited the two licensees to contact him to discuss the matter. Additionally, the FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters.

you got part of it right their are four equations

One Guass governs eltrostatic and electro dynamic cases as well One normaly learns the the electrostatic case case first but you have failed to account for the fact in any RF mattter power dvideds beteween the elictric and Magnetic and then the 2 regenerate each other (with some path loss in short you can't profrom a calution worth doing without more than data than you have and more equation

none of which matter either

what matters is the measurable filed strangth

I wondered why I didn't see that post until I went back an looked it up elsewhere. It seems that the post is 661 lines long and that my filters blocked it (they accept no post longer than 500 lines).

I must say that I'm flattered that Woger keeps a file on me which goes back years. It shows just how much he hangs on my every word. He probably rereads my old posts whenever he needs some inspiration to help him get through the next day. Say, for example, that he is about to give a talk on r.m.s. voltage or on negative SWR. Our past discussions on those two topics could be invaluable to him.

But I may be temporarily moving on, Woger. I just discovered that Mark Morgan wants to learn about electromagnetic field propagation, so I'm going to help him out. When he's ready to tackle advanced topics such as negative SWR or the calculation of r.m.s. voltage, you can take over.

There is nothing to fear John, unless you fear integrity and quality and are against improving yourself. You don't have to do a single thing I say, you can continue to be a scumbag if thats all you really want to be.

I'm only trying to keep the scumbags out of ham radio. It's people like you that help there rest of us know what chitty looks and smells like. Tnx for your support. Remember to flush the toilet when you're done crappin.

That was a smart move for Rumsfeld. Why try to protect America and win the wars when the democrats aren't going to let you win?

All along the democrats were more concerned about terrorist rights, instead of terrorist deaths.

ROFL, I always laugh at that one.

If you are an example of improvement then I'll stick with the 10-4 good buddy's any day. You spend a suspicious amount of time being negatively focused on one sector of a hobby. The truth is that in reality you wish you could be an accepted member of that same sector.
You are a reject of life and lash out at those who you would like to emulate. Enjoy what littler life you have,but for the most part you are wasting it.

The result of solving Maxwell's equations for the radiated field is that the electric field strength in volts / meter can be used to compute the power density in watts per square meter by means of the simple equation

P = e^2 / (120*Pi)

120*Pi is the impedance of free space, as obtained from Maxwell's equations.

Now that happens to be a pretty complete equation, and it can indeed be used as it stands to figure out which power density, P, corresponds to a particular r.m.s. electric field, e. You can also solve the equation for "e" if you want to calculate the electric field when you already know the power density. It is a steady-state solution, and it excludes non-radiating fields (the so-called near field), but it is good enough for most initial calculations.

So, no, one doesn't need additional equations, and one doesn't need to worry about power division between the electric and magnetic fields. That's already been included in the formula given above.

: none of which matter either

They only don't matter because you have the details wrong. If we tried to get at the radiated field strength your way, we'd never get an answer at all.

: what matters is the measurable filed strangth

If you can't estimate the field strength beforehand, then you CAN'T possibly come up with a good initial station design. You'd have to put something up and hope it works out. I suspect that's exactly what Todd has done, and it is a very dangerous way to operate.

: to determine if Todd is legal or not you MUST prefrom the test and
: till that is done Innocent till found guility is ther Law

If the calculations suggest that Todd is very probably exceeding the legal electric field strenth (and they do), it is something that no sane station operator should ignore. Calculations are inexpensive: A certified field strength meter is not, and a NAL is even costlier.

after your post in GIGO

you simply don't understand nor can you even quote accurtely Maxwell eqaution let alone use them none of matters whatmatter is the feild strengh that basicaly requires a guage Todd has one and and has measured the FCC can too

Inocent till proven guilty surely still means innocent till accused by Well, I'm not aiding or abetting either of you (although I think it's just one person trying desperately to get attention). Rather, I just filtered you out of another newsgroup. Eventually, I wont' have to hear from either of you again.

"When I told Abbie Hoffman that he was the first one who made me laugh since Lenny Bruce died, Hoffman said, "Really? He was my god." The combination of satirical irreverence and sense of justice that Bruce and Hoffman shared was the real spirit behind the Yippies--a term I coined to describe a phenomenon that already existed: an organic coalition of stoned hippies and political activists who engaged in such actions as throwing money on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, then explaining to reporters the meaning of that symbolism. Folksinger Phil Ochs summed it up: "A demonstration should turn you on, not turn you off." So when journalists link the Yippies with misleading bedfellows, at best it's careless shorthand; at worst it's deliberate demonization. Osama bin Laden wanted an aircraft to crash into the Pentagon. Abbie Hoffman merely wanted to levitate it." -- Paul Krassner, http://tinyurl.com/ehu3v

And let's not forget Lardass Lloyd's arrest record:
Date: July 4, 1998 caught masturbating in the back row of the movie theater.
Lloyd claimed he saw " a bug on my pee pee and I was trying to shake it off".

Date: September 12, 1998 caught showing two young boys his " willie ". the parents moved and didn't prosecute.

Date: December 21, 1998 caught jerking off behind the local porno magazine store to pictures of naked men.

Date: March 8, 1999 caught putting " secret sauce ' on pizza just before delivering it.

July 4, 1999 (you have something to tell us about july 4th Lloyd?) caught putting his penis in the cotton candy machine at local fair, then offering some special cotton candy to young boys.

October 14, 1999 caught cornholing a friend in back seat of car at local park (a pickle park?) claimed he got stuck while playing leapfrog.

Date: January 12, 2000 Caught at local traffic light with no pants on and jerking off.

Date: August 16, 2000 Caught at pickle park at rest stop soliciting

But then you ARE easily amused huh, bright shiny objects seem to "Two-test" Slow Cunt makes good sentence. Slow Cunt is so stupid, he rehashes 6 year old bullshit. Roger still PASSED his retest and upgraded, something you couldn't do.

The letters to both Wiseman and Tunder were a preemptive "warning" that did not allege any activities. That hardly qualifies as a warning in the context of someone having actually done something.

The letter with the warning in it ALLEGED interference, and warned of consequences.

The retest letter made no reference to interference; in fact gave no reason for requiring the retest. Such a request is part of the Volunteer Examining program. It could have been made for any number of reasons that may have had nothing to do with any of the addressee's actions. An investigation into the VE group that gave the test, would be a good example.

Only one letter was a warning referring to interference.
But then Republicans aren't noted for telling the truth, are they?

You mean 2008. By that time we will be overrun with illegal aliens, but no matter, as Al-queda, after celebrating our elections, is now formulating plans for the biggest terror attacks yet, knowing Congress will have no guts to do anything about them.

ROFL, I always laugh at that reply, because he posts it so much.

No other person from the VE group was tested, so we have to assume that the FCC guys were just sitting around the office one day when one of them said, "Hey, guys: Let's retest Roger Wiseman." There was no reason for it at all, of course, and it just happened.

Nope! I mean 2009!!! The next president takes office in January 2009.

Now, congress and guts. The Socialist Party of the USA [AKA Democrats] will fund, directly or indirectly, Al-Quada NOT to attack us. If we are attacked they will threaten sanctions. If the sanctions threat doesn't work they will debate the existence of Al-Quada at the UN. If that doesn't work, then Al Gore will hug some trees. :-)

PEACE at ANY PRICE is called appeasement. We all know where that led in the 1930s.

The war on terror will run well into the mid 21st century. You better believe it!

Slow Idiot:

Let me then try but one more example, a bit different perhaps will cause the revelation:

Remember from your history classes, there was a time when most if not all the worlds peoples believed the world was flat and, that if one were to set sail in a ship and venture too far, one would fall off the planet (disk?) But yet, now we look back at these peoples and see the blindness their foolishness and fears caused? We laugh at such childish intellect.

Can you make a connection between the above and your own fear--that maniac, illogical, simplistic, all consuming and quaint fear of life without morse code which holds you in blind bondage? Face your fear and be free man!

Regards,
JS

A president who keeps his fingers crossed behind his back when he signs legislation he has every intention of ignoring doesn't really need a 'Veto pen', does he? Or have you been living under a rock? Me, I'm one of those conservatives who thinks the checks and balances intended in the constitution are still relevant. Apparently, you don't. Quite sad

I work with the military. Every US Army officer I have met despises Rumsfeld. He has refused to listen to them from the very begining and fired any general who tried to tell him he was wrong.

Trane should be made to fix this and recall all the units that have been installed. I can pick this interference up on a 2 meter receiver in my car for blocks. The FCC should bust them if they don't fix it...

Good point! There are FCC rules regarding interference / EMI and Trane may have flagrantly ignored them. Maybe a threatening letter to the Customer Service Department written with the help of those of us who are amateur radio / electrical engineering types would force them to finally do the right thing.

First, I would get a schematic of the electronics/wiring/specs/and installation instructions for the specific model (web is a good place maybe.) More of a chance the installer has made an error in the installation, grounding, shielding, etc., could save you from the possibility of "crying wolf" too soon... I suspect the engineers of using more caution in the design of the unit, then the installers in the installation of the unit.

Mark,

I had a severe interference MF to HF from a neighbours gas heater unit. Not sure what it was that was causing it but it was being effectively radiated by the external cables, power and control. I traced the interference to the unit using a portable rx. I silenced it by wrapping both cables tightly around a 6 inch ferrite rod. The cables held in place by cable ties and tape. Hope this helps.

Few posts? you obviously haven't been paying attention, This and several other groups are inundated by his posts. He must be spending several hours every day just composing and replying to them...

I' at the point of seeig whether moderated groups are still around, and getting several started to keep out the crap posts so to speak...

Why does anyone care to answer posts that have NO CONNEXION WHATSOEVER with the object of this group ?????? Only reasonable answer would be "fuck off, Slow Code, YOU're the retard if you're illiterate enough not to see that this group is about SW RADIO !!! So FUCK OFF

Then you also laugh at your reflerction of your pig like face in the mirror. Why can't you even pass the General test even once?

BWHAHAHAHA Lardass, you'd better go re-read the FCC enforcement actions (in your case you need somebody to re-read it for you), plenty of retests have been given and most either fail or don't show. Roger pased his test and upgraded (something you can't do), so that was a real lousy "sanction", huh?

NOTE: Issuance by the FCC of a Warning Notice indicates that the FCC has what it believes to be reliable evidence of possible rules infractions and not necessarily that the recipient has violated FCC rules. The FCC has the authority, pursuant to §97.519(d)(2) of the rules to readminister any examination element previously administered by a volunteer examiner.

July 11, 2000

CERTIFIED MAIL--RETURN RECEIPT REQUESTED

Mr. Roger L. Wiseman

610 Glen Haven Avenue

Glendale, WV 26038-1302

SUBJECT: Amateur Radio license KC8JBO

Dear Mr. Wiseman:

Pursuant to Section 97.519(d)(2) of the Commission's Rules, 47 C.F.R.
Section 97.519(d)(2), the Commission has the authority to re-administer any examination element previously administered by Volunteer Examiners (VE's).
The Commission may either administer the examination itself, or under the supervision of a Volunteer Examiner Coordinator (VEC) or VE designated by the Commission.

Accordingly, we are requiring you to re-take the General Class Amateur Examination, (Elements 2, 3(A) and 3(B)) under the supervision of an American Radio Relay League Volunteer Examiner Coordinator. This examination must be completed on or before September 11, 2000. The required code speed
that you must demonstrate is 5 words per minute.

Please be prepared to verify your current address and to present a photo

identification. Pursuant to Commission rules, your license will be cancelled
if you do not appear for re-examination. You will be granted an Amateur Radio license consistent with the elements you pass upon re-examination.

Sincerely,

W. Riley Hollingsworth

Special Counsel, Amateur Radio

Enforcement Bureau

You're in "Da Nile" ... you know that river that Bushy thinks is in Libya?

I am SOOO happy my government is no longer in the hands of Troglodites, Neanderthals and pedophiles. Stay the course, indeed: straight to hell.

Long Live Good Government

Republicans can lick their wounds and enjoy all the money they've collected from Abramoff and friends. Head on down to Cancun. They can continue to enjoy their Spa Resort lifestyle.

In the meantime, we regular folks have a lot of work to do to restore government and end Bush's Folly in Iraq.

DC motors are notorious noise generators. Those of us who used to be mobile when 6 VDC was the value of a car battery, and alternators did not exist, will attest to the facts of generator [DC motor] noise.

A DC motor uses brushes to contact windings within the motor. As the motor turns the brushes continually make and break current in the rotating armature [inductance]. This making and breaking creates a very wide HF and lower VHF noise spectrum. [Lots of sparks].

The solution, in the olden days, was a coaxial capacitor mounted directly to the frame of the motor with the DC power running through the capacitor. I recall the capacitor was about 1 inch in diameter and 2 inches long. Sprague made such a critter.

Hope this history helps.

Nice thought, but I went a bit down that road--I'm fuzzy about the specific details but for one reason or another the people that I spoke to didn't give me anything positive. Something about the generation of RF interference not applying to a product like a furnace. Since this has been a problem for so long and Trane has not been mandated to fix it lends some weight to what I was told. I did tell the Trane Rep that I was going to contact someone in higher management (VP etc) and issue a complaint at that level----didn't phase him. Then I put in my cable line and didn't follow up. For those of you still aggravated by the RF noise why not try this route? I guess that if you go the way of the Small Claims Court you probably have to sue the installer as well as Trane and it would have to be for a complete replacement (one without the problem)or a removal and money refunded.

I'm pretty sure these motors don't have brushes and are electronically

Anything that generates RF inside the USA is regulated by the FCC. If your cat's butt emits RF in the USA it's regulated by the FCC.

Hi Mark, Modern HVAC, dishwashers, washing machines,ect. use variable speed drives, which increases the efficiency of the devices. The increased efficiency produces increased RFI due to the switching action of the solid state devices (SCR's, BJT's, IGBJT's.ect). My washing machine drives me crazy on Sat. morning on HF as my maid does the weekly wash. As for what you can do? I don't know, it would require vast amounts of filtering at the drives, I am sure that Trane and other mfgrs are not willing invest in.

This is completely different from the usual thermostat interference, and will be much more difficult to get rid of.

It has always been a hoot to watch him twist that to suit his lies.

The letter sent specifically states, "an ongoing personal dispute between Wiseman and another licensee that included allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters."

Un-Wiseman, take NOTE once and for all; The letter does NOT imply that you were being retested for, as you say, "any number of reasons". It specifically states, "allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters" and dance as you try, you cannot change the meaning of the text. It is no secret you did this, Un-Wiseman. You simply make yourself look even more foolish than you already are by continually lying about the letter, thus allowing us poke to the soft spot in Baby Wiseman's little head so we can hear him squeal.

Nice dancing, though.

Interesting discussion, folks....

As a controls engineer and High-Voltage electrician.... as well as delving into HVAC control of late... here's my observations...

These manufacturers will always take the cheapest route possible and damn the consequences. This is particularly true in power and control systems.

A whole lot of manufacturers are moving toward PWM drives on their blowers in particular. Many solutions are an 'on-board' frequency chopper that is integral with the blower's motor.

These choppers are cheaply built and cheaply engineered. I suppose they thought RFI and EMI would be insignificant due to the control being mounted on the motor... but they're noisy as hell.

Suggestions: Replace the power cables with a shielded, VFD rated cable. Belden makes a wide variety... I think they're called the VFD classic line. Pay close attention the unit and cable grounding. Check to be certain your house ground and neutral connections are only tied together at the service entrance panel of your home.

My 2 cents...

Jake

No-codes and nickle hams are bad examples for the type of people we want for a good radio service. People see no-code and they think ham radio is just another group of people that are appliance operators that talk on radio like CB'ers do and have no skills.

If we hadn't dumbed down the test elements for a license, we would have good hams, and people would see the value of the service and know a ham radio license is something that is good to have to work for.

As Jake said.... with the addition of....
Make sure that you have proper earth grounds for your power, and the HAM rigs/shack. That will go a long way towards eliminating RFI. Make sure that all the bonding screws in the furnace are clean and tight, make sure that the furnace has a proper ground also.
When I put the shack together, I drove a seperate 8ft copper ground rod, and silver brazed #6 solid copper to it, then silver brazed the wire to the copper ground buss on the back of the bench. All equipment grounded.....no problem.

First off, I want to say I have never posted anything on nimbusters (until today). I have never posted "She-male" images (that type of material I hate more then anything) nor do I really every want to post anything on there. NIMBUSTERS is a virus, which sits on the world wide web, a group of Neo-nazi's who go around spewing their hate, and trashing other people's sites. Threatening, and wishing certain people (like myself) would Die, or ask if people know anyone that would payu to kill someone (like me) NIMBUSTERS and it little crew of misfits think I'm full of shit when I said I was bring the site down, the truth is I'm NOT full of shit, i sick of them harassign me on here and on the newsgroups (that's when I first learned about the board and began monitoring it and saving pages for evidence) NIMBUSTERS and it's members had me removed from an ISP, thus infringing on my right to free speech, so life a bitch and it's now your fucking turn. The material I gathered, will not only turned over to the host of the website for removal, but will also be sent to the DOJ (including the post from the member looking for someone to pay to Kill me) You see boy you think your fucking with some dumbass, guess again...I do have the Money to go after you and I am going to go after you....just wait and see you stupid motherfuckers!!

Wrong. If the cat's butt emits RF, it's regulated by the FCC. But, digital equipment used only in transportation vehicles - busses, cars, aircraft - and equipment used in appliances - HVAC equipment mentioned specifically - are exempt from Radio Frequency Device regulations. The rule says "....are exempt from the specific technical standards and other requirements contained in this part. The operator of the exempted device shall be required to stop operating the device upon a finding by the Commission or its representative that the device is causing harmful interference".

As to harmful interference, just because the noise floor rises 20db for 5 seconds on a 50 kHz segment of 20 meters when a bus passes your house, it isn't going to be considered harmful interference. As much as you might like to think that it is, a detectable signal from your neighbors Air Conditioner isn't going to be considered "harmful interference". A carrier that obliterates a specific, used - as in "there's a repeater 3 miles away running 200 watts on 444.600, and the carrier from the Carrier (or Trane) nukes it" - frequency might result in a letter. Just " 'cause you can hear it" ain't gonna cut it.

Hi again Mark,

I think Jake is on the right track, whatever the source of noise inside the unit its the mechanism that radiates the noise that needs to be attended to. In my case it was the external cables, choking them off with ferrite sorted out my problem. To suppress the noise at source within the unit seems a bit hard for me. I also suspect there may be more than one noise source in the box.

A quick check of the web turned up a site with posts dealing with the same problem you are experiencing, it seems someone was able to make some noticeable improvements in the rf interference generated--but not totally eliminate... Just might be worth you time time to look, the link I will paste is a long one, if it wraps you may have to copy and paste both lines into the address bar of your browser and make sure there have been no breaks, spaces, caused the whole link. Hope this helps...

It's nice when Markie is gone because you can post about ham radio and not have to worry about him taking a crap on it.

Have a little ham radio fun this weekend. In between some of the other things you do, maybe put the headphones on and make a couple CW contacts.

Yes, the FCC not only has cognizance, but quite legitimately does not want to see products throwing a lot of EMI out which cause you and perhaps your neighbors to have reception issues. If I were at Trane handling Customer Service and was threatened with FCC action, I would react.

Well that's my concern.
There are more and more of these kinds of units being installed everyday.
We can't "home brew" a fix for all of them.
Someone needs to get to the FCC or to the manufacterer to fix this at the source before it gets worse.

As you describe your setup it does meet USA National Electrical Code. Your home should have ONLY one earth connection, not two!

As you describe it, your house presumably has the electrical service panel grounded to an 8 feet long ground rod where the service enters the house. You seem to have added a second 8 feet ground rod to your home specifically for the Ham station.

Check with a local electrician for specific compliance issues.

Actually as I live in a lightening prone area, my home has several earth grounds as do most of the other buildings in the area.

The main service panel has 2 ground rods tied to the same buss, The TV cable entrance has a seperate earth ground, as does the telephone entrance, and the sub panel in the garage.

Yes and that one too.

done did... the sparky is the one that put the extra rods in for the service entrance and the garage sub panel, and the city inspector signed off on it.

--Followed your link and was surprised to see that my comments, posted over a year ago, are still floating around cyber space. Obviously apparent, that the Trane RF noise problem hasn't been addressed by them. What is disconcerting is that they have done nothing to minimize or alleviate the problem and after more than a year are still producing furnaces with a known RF noise generating inducer motor. Clearly a case of COST vs Customer satisfaction---Charge more for the furnace, if that what it takes, and go back to the motor that didn't have this problem. In my case, I had a perfect back-to-back comparison--in the morning the first furnace worked without incident--by noon, the new furnace was screwing up my (rabbit ears) kitchen TV. I took a look at the new furnace and immediately saw that the inducer motor was different--size and configuration. With a little bit of experimentation, I finally narrowed the cause down to the inducer motor. The installer had no clue, was very helpful and cooperative in interfacing with Trane. Since I must have been early in the "new motor" time frame, Trane shot-gunned the problem trying to eliminate it, ----new control board, verifying electrical grounds, replacing the shielded motor harness (the only thing that showed some signs of improvement). I guess at that point they must have figured out that it was a bigger problem then they expected and that's when the Trane Rep stopped returning my calls. It was easier to run a cable line to the TV then to continue dealing with the installer, who was shrugging his shoulders by this time, and the vanishing Trane Rep

Good. Enjoy your ground loops, and have fun replacing appliances the next time lightning hits close. Don't even think of surviving a direct strike.

And to think they had to pass a code test to do this:

Hollingsworth told David O. Castle, WA9KJI, of Evansville, Indiana, October 11 that the WTB referral was the result of "longstanding complaints against the operation of your station" involving interference on HF and 2 meters. In another case, Hollingsworth wrote William F. Crowell, W6WBJ (ex-N6AYJ), of Diamond Springs, California, that his license renewal application has been designated for hearing after a review of "numerous complaints filed against the operation of your station" alleging deliberate interference.

Hearings are held in Washington, DC, before an administrative law judge, and the applicants will have the burden of proof in showing they're still qualified to be Amateur Radio licensees. Over the past several years, the FCC has asked both licensees to respond to allegations of deliberate interference on the amateur bands.

Not quite true!

I run 1KW on low bands [75 and 20 meters]. I have a tuner and low pass filters in line. My station is properly grounded to the service panel ground/earth rod. This connection is also the equipotential surface for the operating position.

My station meets ALL FCC requirements.

If a neighbor's tv, phone, stereo, or whatever, picks up my transmissions the problem is with their equipment and I am NOT responsible for correcting the situation. I will advise them regarding what needs to be done at their end and at their expense. The best demonstration is to invite them into my station and have them witness my tv, phone, stereo etc., being interference free.

The best demonstration is an RFI free home station.

We, hams, are not responsible for deficiencies in consumer electronics. That rests with the manufacturer. The next time you buy a stereo read the Part 15 compliance statement!

Most likely it states, I paraphrase, this equipment MAY receive interfering signals from near by transmitters. Buyer Beware!

Here is something else you can "punce".....

I am ALMOST 95% CERTAIN that when the Lavendar Lads of RRAP and Hamsexy see this video that they will cream in their pants even B-4 they get the chance to "whipe-it-out". It is THAT good. Enjoy!

Why bother? Obviously you are sick enough to go find such things, so why should they?

Actually, most of the stuff being talked about here is exempted by the FCC from testing. Basically, any digital stuff in appliances, and vehicles is exempt from showing compliance. That doesn't mean it's allowed to cause harmful interference, but the exact definition of "harmful" is a grey area.

Exempt from FCC compliance testing but not from Part 15 compliance.
Intentional and Unintentional radiators must comply with Part 15. There is still a permissible level of signal emitted under this Part i.e.
Unlicensed two way radios.

We can't let those lids have access to our bands by making licensing easier. I don't want to turn on my homebrew rig and hear 11 meters on 20 meters.

We need to keep the CW requirement to keep some of the lids out.

I'm begining to think it doesn't do any good to post radio threads in RRAP because you take a crap on every one of them. People will agree with me, this group was less retarded looking while you were away. Now go shove your retard head in Keweenaw Bay.

I think that would explain why Markie is all screwed up. He wasn't really in an army chemical unit, he was just their janitor, that's why he thought he was in the army because he was a retard to begin with.

One day when he was in the armory with a mop handle up his ass and the other end cleaning the floor behind him as he walked around, he decided to sniff some chemicals for a high, and that's how he was exposed to nerve agent.

It also explains the mop incident.

Symtoms of nerve agent exposure: Drooling, loss of bowels, nausea, vomiting, headache, confusion, convulsions, coma, rapid pulse, pinpoint pupils...

Code or no-code it's largely been a bunch appliance operators having their "slam bam thank you mam" QRM contests for the last 15 years. The no-code situation is just going to exacerbate this. Just refer to it as True, but unfortunately, what you see above isn't "ID theft", but froggery. Froggery is fully legal. Also, that's more than likely Wabbit.

I don't know about that! I had some work done which involved an upgraded service entrance and new breaker panel. The electrician added a second ground via a ground stake beneath the panel, despite the original (1967) ground via the cold water inlet pipe being intact and sound.

(I will concede that he didn't quote chapter and verse in the NEC; he may have been following a local code requirement. I know he wasn't padding the bill, as he was doing the job at the behest of my son, from whose business he was buying his supplies. (Still does.)

JS, why are ya putting up with the "BS"? Let's forget him and start using this group for what it was meant for. His comments are null and void. The argument is a horse killed many times over. This has been going on for "months". Time to move on. Nothing is going to change from this "crap" and besides, he has yet to prove to anyone - he even had/has a license.

We already DO have an 'America hater' in the White House, and his name is 'Shrub'.

He already HAS nearly destroyed the country and the Constitution. The Democrats are the country's only hope for a return to sanity, and the vast majority of the nation's voters understood that.

Some needs to point out the use of an invalid TLD means he can't complain even is someone reproduced his "handle". You see technically he has no right to use *.aprs.

So anyone can use stupidwankerMark@kb9rqz.aprs and there is Zero he can do about it... Because *.aprs doesn't really exist.

This will do little to dissuade Mork from making his accusations.
After all, a technicality here and there means little to Mark, especially when he is confronted with his errors.
Mark is omniscient, he knows all, sees all. At least from his Usenet roost in Michigan..

One has to question a guy like Mork, a person whose virtual life revolves around Usenet. Who else do you know who has made Usenet his virtual Home?
Who else but Mark posts 100, 200 or more comments per any given day?
Mark Morgan lacks a Home Life, which is painfully obvious to us Usenet attendees. The guy "ain't all there."

See Bob Officer's reply to me for further enlightenment. It was not "forgery", it was froggery, so-named because you are not using a replyable address, and he is clearly not you. Since you are obviously not being a KKKathy Mosesian-esque boaster, WRT your sex life, the homo/biphobes are waxing froth over your continued presence in their midst as an out bisexual, and nothing more. Your GK win is incidental to that. However, your own objections to the x-poasting into your rec.radio.* froups are equally as k00ky as their objections to you. AUK doesn't do gaybashing, we(tinw) poke k00ks. Any alleged "kookologist" who uses gay lames outside of poking k00ks runs the risk of being nominated for a Busted Urinal, as Michael Baldwin Bruce was, a year or so ago.

You listen to 11 meters all the time. You are obsessed with it.
That is why you are so focused on11 meters. There is a requirement for membership that must be met before you are accepted on CB, and CW isn't it. You must first learn how to socialize with people in a acceptable manner.

How about a positive suggestion?

I think that when we call anyone we should always identify our stations in CW. There is no requirement to use SSB to identify when on SSB. So, try using CW for all station ID requirements.

BTW, I'll slow down to 20 wpm.

Any interest?

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

5A, LIBYA (Update/Reminder). Just a reminder that an international team of operators will activate Libya between November 15-29th, using the callsign 5A7A (See OPDX.765 and OPDX.774). Mustapha, DL1BDF, member of the 5A7A team, reported this past week that the team will leave Frankfurt/M on the morning November 15th for Tripoli. They expect to send the first "CQ de 5A7A" the same day during the evening or on the morning of November

16th at the latest. Mustapha mentions that part of the DXpedition is to setup a settlement for a permanent 5A station for some Lybian newcomers. For more info and updates, visit: http://5a7a.gmxhome.de

6E/6F/6G/6H/6I/6J, MEXICO. In 2007 the Federacion Mexicana de Radio-experimentadores A.C. (FMRE) will celebrate its 75th anniversary (LMRE and FMRE), and XE stations will be using new prefixes during this special event. Look for the following prefixes/callsigns in 2007:
6G1LM - From January 1st through December 31st, 2007
6F75A - From January 1st through December 31st for contests for FMRE
6H1 for XE1 stations
6I2 for XE2 stations
6J3 for XE3 stations (foreign stations)
6E4 for XF4 Revillagigedo stations

8J, JAPAN (Special Event). Look for special event station 8J1ANT to be active between now and March 31st to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Japanese Scientific Research Expeditions (JARE) in Antarctica. The 8J1ANT special station will be active from the JARL building in Tokyo, operated by JA Hams. QSL via JARL Bureau. The JARE Web page is available at: http://www.nipr.ac.jp/jare/
The World-Wide Antarctic Program (WAP) staff has issued a WAP reference number for 8J1ANT and/or 8J1ANT/1; which is WAP-76. These stations will count for the WAP AWARDS: WAP-WACA &/or WAP-ASEA according to the rules.

8Q, MALDIVES. Gianluca, IK0XIH, will be active as 8Q7GL and will be on holiday between November 21-27th. Activity will be on 80-10 meters SSB only. QSL via his home callsign. His official Web page is at: http://www.mdxc.org/8q7gl

9M6, EAST MALAYSIA (IOTA and Contest Op). Saty, JE1JKL, will be active as 9M6NA from Labuan Island (OC-133) during the CQWW DX CW Contest November 25-26th as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m) entry. QSL via JE1JKL (E-mail requests for QSL Bureau cards are welcome at: 9m6na@jsfc.org). See Saty's station at 9M6NA on: http://jsfc.org/je1jkl/9m6na.html

C6, BAHAMAS. Brian, ND3F, will be active as C6AQQ during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as Single-Op/All-Band/Low-Power entry. He is also expected to be active in the ARRL 160 Meter Contest (December 1-3rd) as a Low-Power/DX entry. QSL via ND3F, direct preferred.

CANADIAN SPECIAL PREFIXES. To celebrate the 100th anniversary of Reginald Fessenden's first AM voice broadcast on December 24, 1906, all Canadian Amateur Radio operators may use a special prefix during the period of December 1, 2006, to January 31, 2007. For example, the special callsign CG1 could be use by all callsigns with the VE1 prefix.
CF1 = VA1 CG1 = VE1 CG8 = VE8
CF2 = VA2 CG2 = VE2 CG9 = VE9
CF3 = VA3 CG3 = VE3 CH1 = VO1
CF4 = VA4 CG4 = VE4 CH2 = VO2
CF5 = VA5 CG5 = VE5 CI1 = VY1
CF6 = VA6 CG6 = VE6 CI2 = VY2

CF7 = VA7 CG7 = VE7 CI0 = VY0
QSL via the individual operator's own personal callsign.

CX, URUGUAY. Operators CX3AL, CX5AO, CX5BW, CX9AU, CX7CO and CX9BT will be active as CX7BY during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi/Single entry. QSL via CX5BW. Activity is to pay hommage to their late friend Raul, CX7BY. Operations will be from CX5BW's station.

DP0, ANTARCTICA. A new radio operator will be active from the Neumayer Base (WAP-DEU-02) starting in December through February 2008. Look for Mirko, DG9BHQ, to be active using the club's callsign DP0GVN and a Yaesu FT-897D (100W) and wire antennas. QSLs for this operation will be handled by DL5EBE.

IOTA NEWS.....
AF-018. Members of the Tikirriki Contest Club will be active as IH9P from Pantelleria Island (African Italy - CQ Zone: 33, IIA: TP-01, WAIP: TP, WLOTA: LH-0041) in the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as Multi-Multi entry. This is the group's ninth effort in the CQWW DX Contest and second time in the CW leg. QSL via KR7X and LoTW. Operators mentioned are: I1HJT, I1NVU, I2YSB, IK1QBT, IK2AHB, IK2ANI, IK2CIO, IK2HKT, IK2RZP, IK7JWY, IK8ETA, IT9BLB, IT9VDQ, IT9ZGY, IT9ZMX, IV3SKB and IZ1GAR. Expect some activity before the contest, starting around November 20th by operators as IH9/homecall on SSB and the digital modes. Visit the Tikirriki Contest Club Web page at: http://www.ih9p.com

NA-219. (Update to OPDX.783) A group of German operators will be active from Elbow Cay which belongs to Cay Sal Bank Cays Group in the Bahamas early in 2007. The ARLHS Lighthouse is BAH 018. IOTA NA-219 is on the most wanted IOTA lists in North America. Daniel, DL5YWM, informed OPDX that the group was issued the callsign C6ARI. The QSL Manager is DL3OCH. For more updates and information, please check the following Web site at: http://www.qslnet.de/member/na219/english/index.htm

IS0, SARDINIA. Martin, OL5Y, will be active as IS0N (possibly IS0/OL5Y) during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (40m, possibly 80m) entry. QSL via OK1MG.

J20, DJIBOUTI (IOTA Op). Operators Alfeo/I1HJT, Vinicio/IK2CIO, Angelo/IK2CKR, Carlo/IK1AOD, Marcello/IK2DIA and Silvano/I2YSB will be active from Moucha Island (AF-053), February 1-15th. Callsigns will be J20M and J20R. Activity will be on all bands 160-10 meters including the WARC bands, CW, SSB and RTTY. They plan to have three stations on the air. QSL is via I2YSB. Their Web page is available at: http://www.i2ysb.com/j2/

JOIN OH2BH 60TH BIRTHDAY ON THE AIR! Jarmo, OH2BN, informs OPDX readers in a press release: "Martti J. Laine, OH2BH, has provided an abundance of on-the-air pleasure to Amateur Radio operators the world over by serving rare countries and exciting prefixes for several decades. He is up to celebrating his 60th birthday among his friends. Since his friends are scattered in every corner of the world, this new unique concept is presented.

You just dress up for the occasion, switch on your radio, and you will find yourself at the most thrilling birthday party ever. Welcome on board!
The event will commence November 18th at 0000 UTC and run for 48 hours until November 19th, 2006, 2359 UTC - the 19th being the actual birthday. It will run on CW and SSB simultaneously, on frequencies .025 and .225, such as 14.025 and 14.225 with powerful 4O60BH stations from a 600-meter high mountain perch overlooking the beautiful Kotor Bay in the fledgling Republic of Montenegro. The radio operations are led by Ranko, YT6A, and Dragan, YT6Y and others from near and far.
But that's not all; you can pass your birthday wishes personally on radio since you may get an appointment at the time of your choice for 14.225 kHz by sending a request to sked-60@oh2bh.fi <mailto:sked60@oh2bh.fi> The birthday party station will then call you at that exact minute. You can also send your birthday greetings through msg-60@oh2bh.fi <mailto:msg60@oh2bh.fi>
But even better - following the procedures of any Asian flavoured birthday party, you can obtain a lottery number for a lucky draw from any of the 4O60BH stations. A lucky draw number can be requested by a new one-time Q-code, QBH. The prizes for the lucky draw will be published next week.
The actual draw will take place at the Monday Dinner Party and the winning number will be published the following day in The Daily DX and other DX publications.
The actual Birthday Reception will be held on Monday, November 20th at 1800 hours at Hotel Vila Aleksandar, Herceg Novi, Montenegro.
QSLs will be via OH2BN and each direct request will be honored by a special stamp released for the occasion.
Just join this new way of partying - making the internet work back-to-back with Amateur Radio - all on the air - and be part of BH - Birthday Happiness. See: www.kolumbus.fi/oh2bn/bhday

JW, SVARLBARD. Members of the Svalbardgruppen av NRRL will be active as JW5E during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as Multi-Op/All-Band entry. Operators mentioned are Stellander/LA1CCA/JW1CCA, Math/LA5NM/JW5NM and Trond/LA9VDA/JW9VDA.

MZ5, SCOTLAND. Operator Ian, G3WVG, will be active from the Scottish Shetland Island (IOTA EU-012) as MZ5A during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as Single-OP/All-Band entry. QSL via Nigel, G3TXF.

OX3, GREENLAND. Dwayne, KD4POJ, has been active as OX3PG from Thule (FQ56, NA-018) since July 7th and will be here until July 30th. He mentions that he is active on most bands and modes mainly during his spare time and weekends. This past week Dwayne was heard on 20 meters SSB after 2000z, 40 meters after 2100z and 80 meters after 2200z. QSL is direct via his QSL Manager WA0SMQ. NO e-QSL or LoTW.

PACIFIC ISLAND HOPPING. Susan, W7KFI, will once again be heading out to sea. This 70 year old Grandmother be leaving Majuro Atoll (V73, OC-029), Republic of Marshall Islands in January. She is expected to head towards Tarawa Atoll (T30, OC-017), Gilbert Islands, Kiribati. Keep listening for her to activate other IOTA references while en route. Her departure will also include Kwajalein Atoll (V73, OC-028), Republic of Marshall Islands. QSL via K6FAF, direct only with the required SASE. This amazing lady has an interesting story. It is highly recommend to visit the following Web pages to see where she has been, and there is a Real Audio recording of her radio interview with Art Bell. Visit the Web pages at:

LAST REMINDER!!! Alan, VK4AAR, states, "I am desperately trying to help DXers by reminding them of the nearness of the cut-off date for the current style of IRC (expires 31/12/2006). I have not managed to get a reminder published on any bulletin since the first information a couple of months ago (ed. that is not actually true Alan; read OPDX.778, October 2nd). I have not yet received a NEW style IRC ... and that worries me! Seven weeks to go and the post office will not accept the present one ... so the DXer loses. DXers can E-mail me for FULL and GENUINE details which I received from the Universal Postal Union in Switzerland." His E-mail address is: al-mee@aapt.net.au ADDED NOTE: Alan also states that if anyone can use some IRCs (due to expire 31/12/2006) he can supply them at a good rate. He receives 1.85 (AU dollars) in value for each at his post office (that's 1.50 USD). Alan can supply at the same price ... 10 for 16.00 USDs (that is ... 15.00 USDs plus 1.00 USD for postage). "E-MAIL HIM FIRST!"

Vasilij, RW6HS, informs OPDX that he is the QSL Manager for the following stations: 3DA0BL, 4J4KM, 4K2BY, 4K2OX, 4K4BCU, 4K4CDE, 4K6CM, 4L1FP, 4L1QX, 4L1RK, 4L1UN, 4L4KA, 4L6FU, 4L6QL, 4L6QQ, 4Z5BZ, 4Z5FL, 4Z5FW, 9H1ED, CE2EZE, CT3FF, DU1EIB, EK60DZ, EK6DZ, EK60LX, EK6LX, EK60SB, ER2OG, ER5AL, EX2F, EX7ML, EX8NC, EX8NK, EX8NP, EX8NR, EX8NV, EX8NX, EX8VAB, EX8VI, EY8VV, EZ14V, EZ25V, EZ5AR, EZ6DB, EZ6DM, EZ6DK, EZ60V, EZ7AD, EZ7AI, EZ7AL, EZ7AV, EZ7AW, EZ7V, EZ8AI, FP5EK, GM0SDV, GM0WRR, JL8GFB, JT1FDD, KP3EM, LY2ER, OD5EH, OD5NO, OD5SE, R0/UT1EO, R1FJC, RA1WL, RA1WP, RA6QA, RA6QAS, RA6QD, RA9FHW, RA0BU/A, RA0BY, RA0CAH, RA0FAC, RA0FAN, RK6QWA, RN4CA, RU0LX/mm, RV0AM, RW0BM, RW0LIA, RX3DQN, RX6LMQ/0, RX9CEV, RZ6LL/0, RZ9DX/0, TA1AZ, UA2FBR, UA2FGU, UA2FFM, UA3QJC/VR2, UA6QL, UA6QR, UA6WIL, UA9CDE/UA0B, UA9ZBN, UA0BC, UA0BCU,

Some people say Bushie was born with a silver spoon up his nose but I know that didn't happen until his 30's.

Let's see, prior to that was his drinking problem and, oh yeah, running a major league franchise into the ground...NO, wait...there also was a phony oil company that he ran into the ground.

Iraq? Afghanistan? Katrina?
Bushie's just doing his usual "heckuva" job.

Any wonder that Dems gained Congress?

BTW, the only fraud associated with Kerry was Karl Rove's invention.

Motors with brushes are "incidental radiators" according to the FCC. I believe PWM or variable frequency drive motors would be considered "unintentional radiators" in that they intentionally generate a radio frequency (9 kHz to 3,000,000MHz) but do not intend to radiate it. (see definitions at http://www.hallikainen.com/FccRules/2007/15/3/).

Incidental radiators must use good engineering practice to minimize interference (see http://www.hallikainen.com/FccRules/2007/15/13/).

Digital devices (I think motor control systems qualify as digital devices) in appliances are exempt from the emission limits for unintentional radiators (see http://www.hallikainen.com/FccRules/2007/15/103/), though the user must cease operation if the FCC finds it is causing interference.

One day, Mark, off in the unknown future, I think you'll eventually realise that being "forged", when you're not using a replyable address, isn't the crime you now think it is. Then you'll give a rattling sigh, and stop breathing.

2845. American Red Cross Tells ARRL It Wont Stop Credit Checks On Ham and CB Volunteers

NEWINGTON, CT, Nov 10, 2006 -- The American Red Cross (ARC) has attempted to clarify its policy to require background checks of its employees and volunteers, at least as far as the policy applies to possible credit checks. After the ARC announced the policy in July through regional and local chapters, Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES) members who support Red Cross disaster relief and recovery efforts began expressing concerns to ARRL. In some past incidents -- most notably the 2001 World Trade Center terror attacks and the 2005 Hurricane Katrina response -- ARES volunteers have had to badge in as Red Cross volunteers. In a statement to the ARRL November 9, Laura Howe, the ARC's director of response communication and marketing, stressed that, while background check applicants must give permission to conduct a credit check, the ARC has no intention of conducting them across the board.

"The Red Cross realizes some volunteers may have concerns about authorizing a credit check. Those concerns are understandable," Howe said. "But please rest assured that credit checks are only run in rare instances and are not a part of the routine minimum basic check the Red Cross performs on employees or volunteers."

Howe told the League that the 2005 hurricane season exposed her organization's weakness in the area of background checks, "as evidenced by publicized examples of fraud and waste." The "standard minimum check," she said, verifies the applicant's Social Security number and a search of the National Criminal File for the past seven years.

"While the Red Cross will never run a credit check on the vast majority of its employees and volunteers," she asserted, "it is important that this standard language is included in the consent form to protect our clients, volunteers and employees." Volunteers with questions about whether a chapter might need to delve further into an applicant's background should check with the unit administrator, she said.

The ARC has contracted with MyBackgroundCheck.com LLC (MBC) in Anderson, California, to handle the on-line background checks. Prospective volunteers visit a secure Web site, click on the ARC logo and submit name, address, Social Security number (or other acceptable government ID), telephone number, and date of birth. MBC notifies the applicant's local Red Cross chapter whether or not the individual passed the background check, but it does not share any personal data.

In a statement October 24, ARRL President Joel Harrison, W5ZN, urged ARES and other ham radio volunteers to tread cautiously and read very carefully what they are giving MBC permission to collect on behalf of the Red Cross, especially given the wide net being cast. Howe acknowledged that by signing the consent form, applicants do give MBC permission to "conduct a credit check or other investigation into an individual's background." ARES members are not obliged to submit to a background check, however; the choice to do so is a personal one.

Several ARES leaders maintain that they and their volunteers represent ARES when supporting the ARC as a served agency. "Our issue is not the background checking, but the fact ARC considers ARES members ARC volunteers," one ARRL Section Emergency Coordinator told ARRL Headquarters. An ARES District Emergency Coordinator suggested the ARC policy is too arbitrary. "The unfortunate thing is that if a member decides not to submit to this check, then that will hamper our ability to serve the Red Cross in an emergency," he said.

ARRL Field and Educational Services Manager Dave Patton, NN1N -- whose department supports and oversees the ARRL Field Organization -- believes the Red Cross stands to lose a fair number of volunteers because of the requirement -- and not necessarily just ARES volunteers. One national Red Cross official who asked not to be identified said the organization fears it's seeing "the beginning of a hemorrhage of hams" from supporting ARC operations.

The Statement of Understanding (SoU) between the ARC and the ARRL does not address the issue of background checks. It also is ambiguous on the subject of whether ARES volunteers automatically become ARC volunteers when supporting Red Cross operations and subject to a background check. The bottom line: The requirement extends to whomever the Red Cross says it does. While some Red Cross chapters will allow ARES member participation without requiring that they register as Red Cross volunteers, others will not. One West Coast Red Cross chapter official said the ARC considers ARES members as "non-registered volunteers" and, as such, they were not required to submit to background checks. In other locales, the same volunteers staff ARES and Red Cross organizations. The ARRL-ARC SoU is up for review in 2007.

The ARC's new policy "is a positive action," Howe told ARRL, and aimed at raising public confidence and trust in the organization's volunteers and workers. "The Red Cross certainly values its employees and volunteers, and our background check process is not intended to be a burden to those who play a vital role in our relief efforts," she said. "We believe that in order to maintain the trust of the American people and provide them with the best quality service, all Red Cross employees and volunteers must undergo background checks according to standards being implemented across the entire organization."

Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!

Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.

If you respond to every post someone else makes, they're obsessed. If they respond to less than 1% of your posts, they're even more obsessed.
Publishing people's real names, addresses, and phone numbers when there's no other way for you to come out of a flamewar with any dignity is cool, and proves that you are a master of secret internet information stores, and absolutely not to be fucked with.
Everyone is out to get you. You can put a stop to this by telling everyone that they're out to get you at every available opportunity.

There are some problems with some operators, but dumbing down the licenses further will make the problems worse. Then we'll have hams having shootouts with each other like the CB'ers do, and that just ain't right.

You don't go back far enough. Steve was always nice, then Markie started attacking everyone and crapping on their threads. Steve wouldn't stand for Markies attacks and he fought back. A lot of us sat back and watched. That's why people think Steve always attacked Markie but steve was only defending him self from a lunatic.

It didn't take long for any of us to figure out that Markie was a complete retard.

Steve wrote a thought provoking article about the American public's right to monitor government radio transmissions verses responsiable actions on the part of radio hobbiest.

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

waste his time or the listeners' time with this kind of glop.

Instead he'll probably have a tele-conference with KT4TR and the former WB2OTK.

First there will be a good old fashioned Rrrrrooollllll

Added bonus .... profit Stair will call in with some exciting false predictions.

Pat,

Please ignore the turd Markie just laid on this thread. If you try to figure it out, you'll just get a headache. Tnx.

73, Good luck in the contest.

I haven't been able to hear omega one the last couple days when I had time to listen, and I should have been able to hear it. Your antenna must be sending the RF a different direction other than west. Even if propagation is poor I'm usually able to tell if you're transmitting.

The Conference of Bishops in the United States have announced a new policy on preaching to gay and lesbian Catholics: It's okay to be gay as long as you remain celibate. Then again, that's really not so different from their policy towards everyone else. Basically, having sex is a sin no matter what...so what's the difference if it's gay or straight?

More than one k00k has gone on to win multiple awards after winning the GK, and look up "Edmond Wollmann", "Raymond Karczewski", "Richard Bullis", and "Richard M(orton) Scoville" for examples of what it can mean to win them. Usenet is not intrinsically "real life", but if you insist on making it that way, it will only be so for you. Mind you, in a group full of real-lifing stalkers, I suppose it's real for all of you.

One can always tell it's a froggery because Mark's blog is deliberately misnamed, and "Gav" is obviously Wabbit. Given such obvious sock-puppetry, would any of my colleagues care to investigate further,

As a general rule that makes sense to do something like that in advance. That way anyone who needs an ID has one when the next 9-11 happens. We need to have some sense that the good guys are coming through the door rather than the baddies.

Should do it across the board because we unfortunately do not know one another.

Absolute nonsense. A background check would not solve the problems of waste, fraud and abuse in the slightest. The biggest single problem was that the states of Louisana and Mississippi as well as the federal government did not have the structure set up in advance to manage a disaster of the proportion of Katrina. Doing background checks of volunteers would not have had any effect on the waste problem. Having the process set up to vet contractors who would help in the emergency services and rebuilding afforts would have helped minimize the wqaste farud and abuse problems. But in a disaster of this magnitude there will be people who make it through any vetting process because the push is on to respond. And since we are talking about volunteer radio communicators what possible impact would they have on spending excesses.

That's a gutless response. Do it 100% and get on with the real work. Or do away with the requirement.

I agree. One should consider this requirement very carefully because I would be concerned that Red Cross may not have the information security systems set up to control such confidential data.

His disability isn't that he can't write since he is dyslexic, but rather that he doesn't think and figures that if he argues with the other trolls, that something will changes.

The definition of insanity...to do the same thing over and over again, but expect different results.

Sorry, after I posted this I thought I was going to have time to get on, but I got tied up on a few things, but i will be on tommorrow starting around 8:00 or 9:00 am to around 9:45am (all CST) and then around noon to 4:00 pm (again CST). With the computers down, were having to play the music manually.

Stupidity is right, you have some dumbass (who's also a ham operator) who goes by the name Delorean, they also have Billy Whitetrash, and his neo-nazi buttlover, and king Pedo Stebie Holstein, and another one of their Neo-nazi Butt buddies Hal Turner. You have other retards on that board like Roger (the wookie) Wiseman, and the TimeDork Lloyd Davies, you also have an Admin, who has little control not only of his shitty ass board, but his certain body functions. These people are the primary example that imbreeding goes on in america, because like their board, they do not have the intelligents to care on a decent discussion, and lack the wisdom to do so. The hold this bullshit idea that what they do on there is protected by the first amendment, yet what they have to say on there has no social value. But to all of those who wish to go on there, do so....because it might be up for much longer!!

Why can't any of you propose a way to improve testing so we can have better qualified hams? It's because most of you come from CB and you want to get your buddies into ham radio. The really lazy ones don't even want to learn 5 WPM code.

Yes, I heard it this morning. Quite strong too. Didn't hear it this afternoon, but it might have been there, I didn't listen real hard, didn't have time. It sounds like you might be a little off 13.556, no more than about 110 Hz but it's still noticable on ssb.

Hi, I'm looking for a Collins 30L-1 Round Emblem, High Frequency, Linear Amplifer. Not looking for any junk, actually I want one in excellent condition, Must be Round Emblem... Prefer one that has already been refurbished, things such as power supply, caps , etc...So as I do not have to do it...Although I've restored a few of them...I just want one in Excellent to Mint Condition...
If anyone out there has one of these amps, please feel free to e-mail me and if you like call 718-331-7427

Thanks a Lot

2995. CQWW CW Logger Program ?

Looking for a good Cabrillo type logging program for the upcoming CQWW CW contest - logging each contact by hand and then transferring to a home made logging sheet gets kinda old pretty quick...

Needs to be in Cabrillo format for submission.

Any suggestions? Prefer free or small fee (under $50).

Thanks.

The most user friendly program is at www.n3fjp.com
It's a great program, user friendly (don't even really need to read the help files to get started), automatically checks for duplicates, allows monitoring the online DX clusters if you are so inclined, allows rig control if you are so inclined, allows keying the radio from the computer if you are so inclined, creates Cabrillo files for contest submission and adif files for importing into general logging programs. There's other neat features but that's a good start. It is also quite inexpensive.

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

N1MM's LOGGER program... Can be used as a simple logging program.. But has all the bells-n-whistles you can imagine (and some you can't) if you want to use all its features... Has a community of users who will help you and a chat group...
And is free - not shareware, or pay me later - f r e e ..... Go to:

XPost & Fup to rec.radio.amateur.misc.

My first choice (for single OP, unassisted): CT(Win) by K1EA, available at http://www.k1ea.com/. It's free, easy to use and offers all features you'll need to get started. Saves the log in Cabrillo format, export to ADIF possible to import it into your general purpose logging program.
CT is one of the most used contest loggers for many years now, for a good reason.

More advanced: Win-Test (http://www.win-test.com/). Not free, but worth the price, if you need the rich features it offers.
Especially great networking capabilities for multi-operator environments (probably not important in your case), good SO2R support etc.

Other free Contest loggers: N1MM (Mentioned in another post. It works fine, but it's a bit too bloated for my taste.), SD (http://www.ei5di.com/ similar to CT).

Hope to meet you in CQWW, I'll be Single OP Allband High Power with SO2R (using good old CT).

Fabian, if you are using CT and I am using N1MM (or TRLOG, haven't decided) am I allowed to work you? Isn't that crossed electrons or something?

Don't believe everything you read dumbass...accorrding to wal-mart to the state of Illinois, I left on my own accord....if I was fired I would of gotten unemployment benefits, but since I left on my own accord, I did recieve any benefits. Like I said don't believe everything you read. NICE TRY THOUGH!!

I agree that N1MM is very good. For a beginner in computer logging of contests, it has a steeper learning curve than the N3FJP programs. While you do have to purchase the N3FJP program, it is so easy and intuitive to use that it is great for the inexperienced. I will admit N3FJP doesn't have quite as many features but it does do all the basic stuff (basic rig control, dxspot access, etc). Again that makes it good for contest beginners.

Here is my list of preferred contest logging programs in order:

1. N3FJP if he has one for the particular contest.
2. N1MM when there is not an N3FJP program available
3. GENLOG when neither of the above has a program or module for the contest.

Since your own post tells me to not believe anything you say, this has to be a big lie too.

Okay. I won't believe what you wrote above either. But I do know that the cartoon kiddie porn you post on blogspot makes any rational person wonder if you're a pedophile. Bill O'Reilly doesn't like pedophiles, and he goes after them at the drop of a hat. Maybe it's time that we wrote to O'Reilly and got you put on national television.

Since your own post tells me to not believe anything you say, this has to be a big lie too.

> everything you read. NICE TRY THOUGH!!

Okay. I won't believe what you wrote above either. But I do know that the cartoon kiddie porn you post on blogspot makes any rational person wonder if you're a pedophile. Bill O'Reilly doesn't like pedophiles, and he goes after them at the drop of a hat. Maybe it's time that we wrote to O'Reilly and got you put on national television.

Todd and Roger have some bit of commonality here. Todd was twice fired and Roger was twice tested. Both are have their own versions of reality.

I'm re-posting this because Markie took a crap on it last time and some of you might have gotten confused.

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Tnx, 73, Good luck in the contest.

Nothing heard here. Maybe Todd just needed to talk to someone on 11 meters for a while and he will be back again on 13.556 real soon.

If I'd known operation was going to be so sporatic, I would have made recordings and burned them on a CD.

Mark in the Dark, thinks he has to follow-up to everything that gets posted, like that's his job or something. The impression I get of Markie's mindset:

"Damn, I'm late for dinner and someone just posted again. Oh well, better do a follow-up."

Unless Mark is at the synagogue, he normally gets a follow-up turd laid on a post in less than thirty minutes. There must be some k00k award he can win for being so good at that. If only we could get him to put that much effort into ham radio issues.

Gavrielah Hojnacki starred in a couple films. They were sort of auto-biographical and didn't do well at all, then others stole their movie ideas. Kinda Sad. Gavs movies were:

"Throw Markie from the Train" and "Sleeping with the Enema."

There's a downside to the N3JFP logger Dee - the country files (CTY.DAT) are only irregularly updated and I haven't found a way to update them before each contest via AD1C's service.

fake pics of me
Flatter yourself no more, Doofus. Nobody is afraid of you. From where in your misfiring brain did you come up with that idea?

They post fake pictures to poke fun at you. They make a statement. Surely even a dolt such as yourself can grasp that simple concept, though you seem to prefer denial of the obvious. Perhaps your denial helps you feel better about being the butt of their numerous jibes.

The group Myna Bird squawks again.

Mark has some like-minded butties working on a documentary highlighting the trials and tribulations of obtaining his No-Code license.
"Public Enema Number One" will be hitting the HBO circuit soon. It is destined to be a huge hit with the 11 meter crowd.

I'm re-posting this because Markie took a crap on it last time and some of you might have gotten confused.

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Imagine what step #4 would do to two meter HT sales. The no-coders would be selling them on Ebay at a record rate. Or selling them to fellow CBers.
Of course there is the added benefit of not having our local two meter repeaters jammed up with no-coders telling one another, "You are full quieting here.." (DUH??) Simplex two meter freqs will be safe, however. Most no-coders don't know what simplex is.

Hi Lardass no coder NOVFP Lloyd Davies. When are you going to upgrade your license, after the code requirement is dropped? NO! You're too stupid to pass the written part too!

Oh BTW, try eating a salad every now and then instead of all that pizza you delivery boy lardass loser.

3098. Ten-Tec RX340 Spectrum Display?

Is there a stand-alone, or PC software-based, RF spectrum display that can interface with the 455khz IF output of a Ten-Tec RX340? I don't really want PC control of the RX340, just a spectrum display. Thanks.

I was listening on that freq a few nights ago and heard what sounded like a 14 year old kid belching and making fart noises into his microphone.
Perhaps some kid or more likely a juvenile-minded adult was just looking for his 15 minutes of fame on the freq?

What a waste of a perfectly good CD.
Heck I'll bet you couldn't even sell one of them at the Dayton Hamvention along with colourful cover art and a jewel case for $2.00 a pop.

Best to just blow farts on 13.556mHz and if you lucky you may made a few of the SWL blogs or one of the shortwave pirate logging articles in a future issue of the Monitoring Times.

I don't think this is likely since you would need an A/D samping around a megahertz, which isn't stock hardware on a PC. There are SDRs that will give you a panoramic display on your PC.

3B6, AGALEGA. Members of Polski Zwiazek Krotkofalowcow (PZK)(the Polish Amateur Radio Union) and SP-DX-Club are organizing a DXpedition to the Island of Agalega to take place in March of 2007. The group has received a license and access to visit the island. Operators mentioned are Witek/ SP9MRO (co-leader), Wojtek/SP9PT (co-leader), Marek/SP9BQJ, Bogdan/SP3IQ, Wojciech/SP5BFX and Jozek/SP9-31029. Activity will last for 12-14 days. They are planning to be active on all bands from 160-6 meters, on the modes CW, SSB, RTTY, PSK31 and JT6M on 50 MHz. Also, activity is possible from Seychelles (S7), Mauritius (3B8) and /MM operations from the Indian Ocean. The team is looking for sponsors to help off-set the huge expenses of this DXpedition. More details should be forthcoming.

4L, GEORGIA. Mamuka, 4L2M, will be active during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (40m) entry. QSL via K3PD only; "OK" direct or by the Bureau.

4L, GEORGIA. Vaho, 4L8A, will be active during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m)/High-Power entry. QSL via DJ1CW, by the Bureau or direct.

4O60BH BIRTHDAY PARTY PRESS RELEASES (from Jarmo, OH2BN):
1 LOG SEARCH FOR YOUR 4O60BH QSOs. Dragan, YT6Y, from the on-the-air birthday party for Martti, OH2BH, in Montenegro, reports that a log search facility for 4O60BH, the station now active in connection with Martti's 60th birthday celebrations on the Adriatic coast, will be available starting today, Sunday. The first 3500 QSOs will be uploaded by Dragan later this morning (19-Nov), with the rest of the log to be uploaded by Ranko, YT6A, on Monday morning. The online log can be found at: http://www.skycc.info/4o60bh

#2 (November 19, 2006). The 4O60BH on-the-air birthday party has passed the halfway mark as far as its radio part is concerned. This happened at 0000 UTC on November 19 when the total reached 4000 QSOs, and the party switched into a true birthday mode. High bands have caused something of a disappointment, but 75/80M has compensated a great deal. The 80M band saw 4O60BH penetrate both Japan and USA with several hundred QSOs into each of the two major regions.
This activity will continue for another 24 hours and move into party time mode on Monday with a Reception and a Birthday Dinner. Some 200 Lucky Draw (QBH) numbers are given out, but you still have time to get yours. The Lucky Draw will take place at the Monday Dinner, and the winners will be announced at the same time.

5A, LIBYA. The international team is up and active now as 5A7A with 8 stations on various modes on all bands through November 29th. QSL via DL9USA. Check also their Web site at: http://5a7a.gmxhome.de

8P, BARBADOS. Tom, W2SC, will be active as 8P5A during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via NN1N.

8Q, MALDIVES. Operators Igor/RA9CMO, Willy/RN4WA, Vladimir/UN9LW, Igor/
RA3AUU and Igor/UA9CDC will be active as 8Q7DV during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi/2 entry. QSL via UA9CLB.

A6, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES. Michel, OD5TX, who has operated from the UAE as A6/OD5TX until late July 2006, has now been issued authorization to now operate as A61TX. The license was issued on November 14th and is valid for one year. His QSL Manager, as in the past, will be Jack, W4JS.

AH2, GUAM. Operators Toshinobu/JI3ERV, Mikawa/JR7OMD and Nozumu/JE8KKX will be active as AH2R for the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via JH7QXJ.

CARIBBEAN TOUR. It seems Karl, N1DL, will be very active through the end

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-041. Operators JG4PYJ, JI4IPB, JJ4KME and JM4FGW were expected to be active as homecall/4 from Chburi Island (JIIA AS-041-002) in the Oki Island Group, JA4 Shimane Pref, this past weekend.
QSL to their home callsigns, direct or by the bureau.

OC-150. Hotang, YC0IEM, will be active as YC0IEM/9 from Lombok Island between November 20th and December 6th. QSL via IZ8CCW, direct or by the bureau.

J2, DJIBOUTI. Eric, ON7SAT, will be active as J20SA from November 20th through December 16th. His activity will be limited since he is there on a work assignment. Eric hopes to have the possibility of putting an antenna on the hotel there (nothing is sure at this time). Activity will be SSB on 40/20/15/10 meters (if his QTH permits). The equipment is a half size G5RV antenna and a Yaesu FT100 transceiver running 100 watts barefoot.
Eric states, "Please understand that I'm there on business, so I might have to stop operating abruptly and get back to work." QSL via ON7SAT, direct or by the Bureau.

J4/SV1, GREECE. Tomas, LY1F, will be active as J41A during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (160m) entry. Look for him before and after the contest as SV1/LY1F. QSL via LY1DF. Visit his Web page at: http://www.qrz.lt/ly1df/

J5, GUINEA BISSAU. Father Gianfranco, J59OFM, operates from the Catholic mission at Caboxangue, Guinea Bissau. He is active only on Sundays and Wednesdays between 1615-1645z on 14321 kHz (+/-). Father Gianfranco does not speak English, but answers to calls in Italian, Spanish and Portuguese languages. QSL via I3LDP: Lucio Bresciani, Via Locchi 29, 37124 Verona - VR, Italy.

J7, DOMINICA (NA-101). Operators Michel/F6COW and Dominique/F6EPY will be active as J79CO and J79EP, respectively, between November 20th and December 5th. Activity will include the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th). Precontest activities will be on 160-15 meters, CW, SSB and some Digital. QSL via their French callsigns, direct or by the bureau.

KH2, GUAM (OC-026). Operators Masanori/JA1OZK/AA9WZ, Masao/JA1OHP, Tadao/JF1TAB, Ken/JH1FUD, Hiroshi/JL1LOW and JK1DRM will be active from here using the callsign K2G between November 25-28th. Activity will be on the HF bands including the WARC bands, SSB, CW and the digital modes. They will not participate in a CQWW DX CW Contest. If operators use the homecall/KH2, QSL via the bureau (or direct) to each operator's home callsign. QSL K2G via JA1OZK.

KP3, PUERTO RICO. Operators Al/WP3C, Felipe/NP4Z and Eric/NP3A will be active as KP3Z during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via WC4E.

LZ0/VP8, ANTARCTICA. Two members of the Bulgarian Contest Club (LZ9W) will be leaving Sofia very soon to be active from Livingston Island. Operators Mitko/LZ1UQ and Danny/LZ2UU will be active as LZ0A from the Bulgarian Antarctic Base "St.Kliment Ohridski" starting December 1st. Mitko will stay until March 1st, and is expected to be active as VP8/LZ1UQ in some HF contests. Danny will stay until December 20th.

Vic, EA5YN, (Pilot for 3C0M) reports that the log for 3C0M can be now found at: http://personal.telefonica.terra.es/web/ea5yn/

QSL 4U1UN via HB9BOU. There was activity on November 18th.

FT4WD QSLS. Norbert, F6AXX, still has the logs and the QSLs for the FT4WD (1993) operation by Christian, FD1NOG (now F5NOG), from Crozet Island.

KH8SI QSL STATUS. Kan, JA1BK, advises that over 4000 envelopes have been mailed out. There were about 8000 unique callsigns in the log. Kan asks that you QSL for "ALL" of your contacts since he is using pre-printed labels with all contacts listed. Requesting confirmation for all of your QSOs will insure that all log entries are legitimate two-way contacts. If you only sent for some of your QSOs, simply send the rest in an envelope with no SAE or postage; and you will receive your card. If you have not yet requested your cards, please include "ALL" contacts in one envelope along with an SAE and postage.

Nilay, TA3YJ, informs OPDX that the YM125ATA QSL cards have been sent direct on November 18th. Special postal stamp for the memory of ATATURK's 125th birthday and its information have been sent with the direct QSL cards. You can find the sample stamps on:
http://www.ptt.gov.tr/tr/pul/show/html/06-8.html Nilay states, "Beside the QSL cards for YM125ATA a CD representing Mustafa Kemal ATATURK and modern, contemporary Turkey will be sent to the radio amateurs who have made QSOs on 3 different bands or 3 different modes and also have sent their QSL cards direct. They should send me their QSL cards direct until December 31, 2006. YM125ATA's special CDs will be sent in January 2007." Inside the YM125ATA's special CD: *FILMS: Mustafa Kemal ATATURK, Wonders of Turkey, Turkey, Gallipoli, Fire of Anatolia - *PHOTOS: Mustafa Kemal ATATURK - *eBOOK: Who are the Turks? - *INFORMATON: Operating and licence conditions for foreign radio amateurs (CEPT members only) visiting Turkey - *ETC. YM125ATA's special CD is free.

S9SS GOING QRT FEBRUARY 2007! Charles Lewis will retire in February 2007, and finish his work as IBB VOA station manager on the Island of Sao Tome where he is known as S9SS (aka A22AA, S92SS, SV0LM, SV5/SV0LM, A25/KY4P, KY4P). In his deserved retirement, he and Lesley, S9YL (aka S92YL, SV0LN, N3TIA), will live in the mountains of the northwestern region of North Carolina in the USA. His S9SS LOG is uploaded to LoTW. Paper QSLs can be confirmed by his QSL manager N4JR. S9SS log on-line can be seen on Danilo's home page at: http://s50u.s50e.si
By the end of February, more than 80000 QSOs will be sent to: http://logsearch.de/
All of his logs for callsigns prior to S9SS exist only on paper; however, he plans to create files of at least some of them for submission, little by little, to the LoTW over the next few years. It will require typing the data for about 100000 QSOs, so he perhaps will never finish the work. He will do the A25/KY4P log first.

SPECIAL EVENTS (French).....
TM8T - Activity will be from November 27th to December 10th, on 80/40/20 meters CW/SSB, possibly 2m/F3E. Operators mentioned are F0FGG, F4DEA, F5TBE, F6HSQ and F6BDM, from the city of Croix. The main activity will be during the "The Telethon" from 1400z, December 8th to 1700z, December 10th. QSL direct with a SASE and 2 Euros which will be given for the fight. An award will be issued for 2 QSOs on 2 bands for 3 Euros, same destination. QSL managing address: GCNF, 87 Avenue Roger SALENGRO 59170 CROIX, before December 23rd imperative deadline.
TM5DIA - Activity through November 25th. Activity to celebrate/help the "DIABET'ALLO" (Young Diabetic in Burgundy). QSL via F5LRL or see info for TM5DIA on QRZ.com.

TM5AIR - Activity by the F5KEK ARS between December 2-16th, to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the first Air Base in the French Auvergne Atea in Varennes Sur Allier. All bands and modes. QSL direct or via the bureau.

ST, SUDAN. Operators Jovica/ST2A and Fernando/ST2BF will be active as ST2A during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Multi-Single entry. Activity will be on 40/20/15/10 meters only. There will be more activity on Saturday than on Sunday (which is a work day). QSL via T93Y.

SV9, CRETE. Dimitrios, SV9COL, will be active in the CQWW CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry.

T8, PALAU. Mike, K9NW, will be active as T88MR during the CQWW DX CW Contest (Novemer 25-26th) as Single-Op/All-Band entry. QSL via K9NW. Mike will be here between November 20-28th, and will try to pay special attention to the low bands outside of the contest.

TN, CONGO. Well known German DXers Baldur/DJ6SI and Franz/DJ9ZG will be on a DXpedition to Congo in late November and early December. Baldur will use the callsign TN6X on CW and Franz will use TN0Z on SSB and RTTY. Activity will be on 160-10 meters with two stations on the air. QSL to their home callsigns via bureau.

V3, BELIZE. Joe, K8JP, informs OPDX that he will be operating back home in Belize as V31JP from mid-November through early April 2007. Activity will be mostly CW on 160-6 meters. He mentions that he will try to get into some contests this year. QSL via his QSL Manager KA9WON.

VK, AUSTRALIA (SSTV). Peter, VK6AAL, reports that there is a very active SSTV group on HF on 14230 kHz with SSTV Live Webcams, and they are monitoring the frequency around the clock. He states, "Stateside stations are heard on occasions, and if they are aware of our presence, good DX contacts are possible both on the LP between 23:00 to 00:00 UTC and some times on the SP between 11:00 to 14:00 UTC. Our problem down under is breaking into local traffic in the U.S. as we are often beaming into the sides of the stations in the U.S. who are sending pictures North and South in their transactions. On the odd occassions when we have been able to make our presence known, then signals of 5/7 with good picture quality is possible. All that is required is a 3 element beam with about 70 watts pointing down under:-)". Peter wants to let more SSTV operators in the U.S. know the stations in VK-land are there and eager to work stations LP or SP. They have an elaborate array of SSTV Live Wecams to monitor DX; some on fixed antennas others on Beams that track the propagation. Visit his SSTV Live Webcam at: http://users.tpg.com.au/adslsymb/VK6AAL/

VP2M, MONTSERRAT. George, K2DM, will be active as VP2MDG during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 25-26th) as a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via K2DM.

VP2M, MONTSERRAT. Operators Phil/G3SWH and Jim/G3RTE will be active from the Island of Montserrat between February 21-28th, 2007. Callsign will be announced later. Activity will be primarily on CW with some possibly RTTY and PSK31 on all bands 160-10 meters. Propagation permitting, they plan to have two stations on the air for as many hours every day as is possible. Their main objective is to work as many European, North American and ROTW stations on as many bands as possible. QSL via G3SWH, either direct with SAE and adequate return postage or via E-mail for a bureau reply or via the bureau. Phil's E-mail address is: phil@g3swh.demon.co.uk

VU7RG NEWS (Lakshadweep Islands). Press releases from the past week: November 15th - The WPC, Govt. of India, has initiated the process of issuing reciprocal licences to the applicants of VU7 HAMFEST participants. The first batch of 10 reciprocal licences are

If you mix the 455 kHz output to 10.7 MHz, you could use the AOR display.

I think that Mark sent Todd a turd. He's been threatening to do that in past posts, and he finally got the cujones to carry it out. It was probably one of those frozen turds from his back yard.

However, it is often a good choice for the person who has never used contest software before due to its intuitive interface. All the other software that I have experimented with takes time to get familiar with.

I'm using the AVCOM SDM-42B display with my RX-340...to use this unit you have to have the accessory 45 MHz IF unit installed which then interfaces with the 1st wideband mixer output at 45.455 MHz. I THINK the low end of the chain at 455 Khz may not be wide enough to give you a decent display width. Usually run the display with a width of about 100 KHz which lets you see lots of signals (and some birdies too unfortunately). AVCOM has software that when connected to the SDM will display the same info on your PC. The software was originally intended for their spectrum analyzers so many of the measurement functions do not operate with the SDM. I/O is thru a serial port--they used to have an accessory adapter that interfaced via the PC's parallel printer port but I could never get it to work until they upgraded my unit to a serial I/O. The communication with the PC is only one-way so you couldn't control the RX-340 with this unit even if you wanted to.

Be advised the unit is pricey (even after they significantly reduced it a year or so ago) and support for that unit is VERY low on the company's totem pole of products....but it sure is nice to be able to see the band.

As far as I know this is the only hardware spectrum display unit you can use with the RX-340. The AOR units have only 10.7 MHz inputs. BTW, with the 45 MHz converter installed you retain the use of a second channel at 10.7 MHz for another receiver -- I've got the Icom R7100 hooked to that port so the SDM-42B supports both radios.

Check out the specifications of a new receiver coming in January from RF Space: www.rfspace.com/sdriq.html

A feature of this new receiver is the ability to serve as a panadapter display for other receivers via any IF frequency within the HF range (455 kHz qualifies). I'm thinking of getting one for the 190 kHz RF recording capability, so I don't tie up my SDR-1000 while DXing. The SDR-1000 needs to be left on a single frequency while recording a swath of RF.

The SDR-IQ's price is $449 (receiver, software, no enclosure), and $499 (receiver, software, plus enclosure).

Last night I was experimenting with some new antennas and was suprised to hear the HI beaon from CN from 2006.11.19:23:00:00 through 2006.11.20:01:45:00 when I shut it down because it got too #$%^ cold outside. Nice strong S1 with minimal fades.

It won't be that bad, a lot of no-coders will uprade. Only the sick, lame, and lazy will get out and flood eBay with ham gear, but since the sick, lame and lazy are like CB'ers we don't want them in the amateur service anyway. They aren't motivated enough to improve it, or themselves.

At least N0VFP and N9OGL don't get into bad moods and try to destroy the newsgroups when they fail. Woger can learn something from them, but he's chooses Markie for his mentor. It must be a gay thing.

LOL. Todd must have wanted to fill air-time while he was figuring out how to get tunes back on. I can't hear Omega at night now. I can only hear it during hours of daylight if it's on. November propagation.

I'd use cd-rw for Omega one so I can re-use the CD, I wouldn't put Omega
One on a burn once cd, that would be a waste, even if they do cost only 99 cents.

If you don't care what the radio bands sound like, then you're probably a loser that wants to see code to go away. You don't care if hams are valuable. But if you do care about ham radio, you'll help me promote importance of have good operators.

So what's it going to be with you people? Quality hams? or Lids?

Did you stand up drop your pants, and give your radio a Botox facial or did you cream your pants before you got them down?

Ten-four?

Yes, I've heard of this problem before. You're too friggen stupid to own a radio like that, so just throw it in the dumpster before the FCC fines your retarded ass.

"assnate me?" Is that like getting aids from anal sex and dying from it?

No Markie, I'm not queer, I won't assnate you. You need to talk to Woger or Lloyd for that.

ROFL

Just because the turd looks like Markie, it doesn't mean it came from Markie.

Hee Hee Heeeeee, If you go outside and hear someone out west puking, you'll know I can hear it.

I really don't know why you picked 6950, it's not a clear frequency, others transmit around there too.
